NEGLECT CAUSE OF HORROR AT FISH CO. FIRE

Gross municipal negligence as the cause of the death of the twelve employes of the L. Fish Furniture complany who died in the fire of the store on Good Friday, was further revealed at the coroner's inquest resumed yesterday.

Efforts were made to shift the responsibility upon two boys who had played with a cigarlighter from which the fire started. Lee Stockel was one of them and "Johnnie" was the other. Among the other witnesses were Solomon Fish, bead of the firm, Isaac Fish, the second was so mysterious that Lieutenant the other witnesses were Solomon Fish. and "Johnnie" was the other. After a speech by H. J. Myers, who headed the "business men's" delegation, in which he told the president that "the reputable citizens of Bethlehem condemn the efforts of the professional ag-itators to injure the company," the "Father of Injunctions" replied, in part:

"I am utterly opposed to the princi-ple of a boycott. Every issue ought to be settled or its own merits. "That is the position I occupy. It is the position my administration, as far as I can control it, will occupy. The Bethlehem Steel co through some mysterious manner, is able to get more government work than all its competitors. As a matter of fact, the strikers declare, it is practically nothing but government work that keeps those plants running. Al-though Taft's record was known to them, the Bethlehem strikers did not ex-pect that the president would absolute-ly refuse to interest himself against the oppressive conditions under which gov-ernment work is made.

Dinners were held in one or two of the hotels by business men who have decided to carry the plan out at any cost. The plan to send Cooley to Europe is the wedge to open the the ex-superintendent to go back as the head of the Chicago public schools.

The plan to oust Mrs. Young, the most practical school administrator and one of the most sincere and honest school superintendents the city has ever had, is no longer a secret. The little scheme involves a "business" ticket for the next election of aldermen, who will do what the Commercial club will command them to do.

"Mr. Cooley has resigned from the Heath Publishing company, not from choice but from policy," stated a mem-ber of a publishing house here in Chi-cago. "There was friction between him and the other officers of the firm, as well as between him and some of the firm's patrons. Mr. Cooley has many enemies in educational circles, and has added materially to the list during his short term with the publishing house."

When Cooley Quit Mr. Cooley resigned as superintend-ent of the Chicago schools nearly a 591 year ago to accept the position with the firm that had furnished many of and the books to the Chicago schools dur-ing his autocratic administration, and which is a book trust firm. The inner circles of the Commercial club, which seek to dictate what education the Chicago children should receive, had sought to prevent this. Mr. Robinson of the Illinois Steel company, who is greatly concerned that there should not e much sedition in his shops, spent a uncheon period over Mr. Cooley at that time, and renewed communications with im when matters at the book firm had

State Commission Refuses to Investigate Traction crooks in Philadelphia

BY J. A. PISCHER

Philadelphia, Pa., April 9.- "The state railroad commission has declined to Wils make an investigation into the transit conditions and the deaths that have resulted. Now we will ourselves prepare a petition showing, the number of deaths and injuries that have been suffered on account of inexperienced men running the cars. We will also furnish the commission with other data in the hope that it will be stirred to action."

This statement was made by Ray-mond McNeill of the South Philadel phia Business Men's association. He made it public because a second request made by the committee of thirty-five of the United Business Men's association to the state railroad commission asking that it inquire into the transit conditions in this city was unheeded.

Loss of life and serious injuries is Philadelphia's daily toll to the disorganization of the traction system. The citizens are provoked at the indifference of the police and the rail traction offi-

Nearly every accident has been at-tributed to either gross carelessness or inexperience on the part of new motor-men, many of whom are not, it is said, even familiar with their runs.

The accident and fatality list, the striking trolleymen say, is conclusive proof that the company is badly in need of the trained operators in the ranks of the Amalgamated union. The strike leaders further assert that the accidents will not stop until the company is able to get experienced men in the places of the "green."

red >s second-class matter, Dec. 22, 1908, at P. O. Chicago, Ill., under act of March 3, 1879. need by the Workers' Publishing Society, 180-182 Washington st., Chicago, Ill. Telephone Number (all departments) Franklin 1168.

Roosevelt, the Coming Dictator?

Henry Watterson, the editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, who, a few months ago, after a return from a European trip, assured his readers that nothing can stop the sweep of Socialism, now suggests that Roosevelt may be made dictator of the United States.

He is not joking, either. He is merely putting out a feeler in the open to test the public mind. He is speaking out in the form of a question what has been whispered for many months.

The rising tide of Socialist thought and the certainty of an international revolt of labor in the near future is filling the parasitic rulers of the world with fear. They are massing armies and preparing for military operations on a scale that dwarfs anything the world ever knew before. That these preparations are against the "internal foe" is all but admitted by European rulers. That "internal foe" is the working class, which is to be held by the military force while being robbed by the industrial rulers.

In such a situation the ruling class naturally looks for a dictator, for "the man on horseback," who has appeared in the wake of previous popular uprisings.

This time there will be no "man on horseback." This revolt is not like others. It is not a wild outburst of fanatical followers of leaders, or phrases, or delusions, who can be captured by some popular cry or crushed by some picturesque personality.

The revolt of Socialism builds new bulwarks to defend each step gained. It moves forward on a firm foundation of widespread action and education, and when it has reached a strength where power is threatened in a popular government, a majority of the population are beyond the reach of any dictator. This majority will be just those who have fought all wars in the past and must fight them in the

The dictator who would turn back the tide of Socialism will find himself a general without an army.

The French revolution was followed by Napoleon, because the French people followed sentiment, not sense, and when Napoleon waved the tri-color before them they rushed to battle with the same enthusiasm that they had followed other flags to the overthrow of the

The workers who are organized under the banner of Socialism know why they are fighting, and know how to secure each step gained by the erection of institutions that form barricades against reaction.

The social revolution will not be followed by the rule of a Roosevelt. He may come "back from Elba," but he had better keep Waterloo in mind when Henry Watterson talks of "dictators."

Stop Thief

William Randolph Hearst has certainly gained a right to the position of the premier clown in the great American political circus. Driven frantic by the result of the Milwaukee election, he throws a fit in three columns of pica type. Like the pickpocket fleeing from pursuit, he shrieks "Stop thief!" to turn attention from himself. He accuses the Socialists of having stolen their platform from him.

"That platform is not the legitimate property of the Socialists-

"That platform is not the legitimate property of the Socialists—
it was stolen," he squeals. "It is not Marxian, but Jeffersonian."

* Poor old Jefferson, individualistic in philosophy, the last extreme of "laissez faire," opposed to all centralization, all governmental activity, apostle of "free competition," states' rights and a composition of the state of the magnates and there engines and the composition of the magnates and the composition of the magnate reactionary agrarianism, denouncing even manufactures and belitting commerce, blind to the whole idea of industrial evolution—now to be charged or credited with the Milwaukee Socialist municipal platform.

Dying before the existence of the modern wage worker, Hearst when you can have a ham for a dollar eleven would simply be the actual price, but, when you came to buy it, the price girls, who presented him with a beauty of the control of reactionary agrarianism, denouncing even manufactures and belit-

While trying to corner the glory for Jefferson, Hearst seeks to capture a good share for himself. "The Examiner stood for these things long before the Milwaukee Socialists began to challenge attention," he says. Why, you poor, inflated imbecile, the Socialists were standing for those things long before Hearst and yellow journalism disfigured the earth.

Years before the Examiner began to clutter up the minds and the back alleys of the working-class neighborhoods of Chicago, the Milwaukee Socialists were preaching these things, and had a strong organization, casting many more votes than Hearst's presidential man Friday obtained in the whole state of Wisconsin.

Hearst has only lived as he has stolen the phrases of Socialism

Now that he is caught with the goods on he shricks "Stop thief!" in finding him a job: God knows! the hope of attracting attention from his own political and intellectual

DOUBLE CROSSED

BY JOSEPH E. COHEN

In a statement issued to the public the Philadelphia car men have the following to say

"We have been informed that the political interests who have estensibly been posing as using their influence to bring about a settlement have in reality been the very men who are obstructing and preventing an honorable settlement and are giving the car men and the people the double cross."

This may be entirely true

The old party politicians, Republican, Democratic and reform, are principally concerned with safeguarding the dividends of the company. Dividend: increase in proportion as the wages of the car men are low and the fares of the riding public high. Politicians cannot serve the car men and the people while serving the company. Therefore, the double cross.

In this strike the action of the car men has been almost exemplary. While fighting their own battle with the only weapons they could use they have gone as far as they could to retain the good will of the public. And that is very necessary.

The public have rights the car men no less than the city officials, the company's real strike breakers, are The old party politicians, Republican, Democratic and city officials, the company's real strike breakers, are out on strike, to ignore the fact that there is a public. It is only a step from this position to that of the notorious money lord who said. "The public be damned."

The public is interested in low fares. So are the car men. To reduce the rate of fare means to cut into the dividends of the company. To cut into the dividends of the company means to cut into its power. The employes are then more apt to secure concessions from the company

On the other hand the public can gather encourage-ment from the successful strikes of the car men. The car men and the public should join forces against the com-pany which, as the final stage of the evolution of the middle man of former times, saps the labor force of the workers and gouges out of the riders every penny pos-

The workers are interested in ending the exploitation of their labor by the capitalist class. The public is interested in ending the operation of the traction system for the private profit of the capitalist class. Both the workers and the public stand opposed to the capitalist class who perform no useful function, yet are the principal beneficiaries of all work done. beneficiaries of all work done.

To carry on production of goods for the enjoyment of e people with all exploitation of labor eliminated—that the ultimate aim of the car men and all labor.

is the ultimate aim of the car men and all labor.

The public consists of the working people, organized and unorganized, together with that heterogeneous mass called the middle class and some who belong to the group of small capitalists. The large capitalists seldom use the trolleys, seldom make their purchases at the ordinary stores, seldom consume what the common run of workers produce. They are a class apart in almost every respect. They are no part of the public.

The interests of the various elements of the public are to no means identical at every point. But the differences to no means identical at every point.

by no means identical at every point. But the differences that divide them are not nearly so glaring as those which divide them as a whole from the class of large capitalists. To the extent that common ground for concerted action can be found they should strive together against the large capitalists. Once the important industries are so-cial property and labor no longer deprived of the fruits of its toil, whatever differences there may remain among the victorious elements can then be adjusted.

The old party politicians will ever double cross the car men and the public. That is why the Socialist party is indispensable.

Both the trades unions and the Socialist party should go as far as they can, without compromising their prin-ciples, to secure the co-operation of every agency inter-ested in the elevation of the political, economic and social lot of the workers. They should go as far as they can to assist the public to secure better service and better goods and better returns for their money at the expense of the capitalist class.

THE PLOW

BY GEORGE E. BOWEN O lowly implement, forgot, with rust begrimmed, Yours is a common fate: The revolution garlards not with eyes tear-dimmed The martyred souls that wait.

Once shining strength of yours no stubborn soil skiramed o'er When toiled your faith afield. With patient hope your sturdy service yielded more

That Woman's Trade Union league is a mighty fine affair. I wonder what 'Locdon bridges are fallin' down.' It's makes these girls come down and work with us? Perhaps it's because they have nothing else to do, but that can't be it, for there isn't much fun fighting in one way, Mr. Hayman can't do any-around with the cops, being dragged to court, or running about from hall to hall, talkin' until a body is hoarse.

I shouldn't wonder that they're ashamed of being so well off, while us girls have nothin' but struggle ahead of them. I think women, as they go, are after all a bit softer than the men. There's truth in the sayin' that there's think about the little worries don't matnothing worse than a bail woman and ter much. There's truth in the sayin' that there's nothing worse than a bad woman and nothing better than a good one. An' the league women are certainly mighty good.

Stopped on the square this afternoon and listened to them that talks for votes for women. It's all very good, a woman is every bit as good as a man, and perhaps better, but just now we haven't the time to think of it. We must win the strike first, and win we shall.

The girls were all excited about the big meetin' at the Hippodrome tomorrow. You could hear them talk of nothing this time, think about the little worries don't mathematical trunch. PARAGRAPHS FOR PEOPLE

At a joint and representative meeting of the Vancouver Trades and Labor council, Building Trades council and other organizations, at which Geo. H. Cownn, M. P., was present, the secretary was unanimously instructed to send the following telegram to Sir Wilfrid Lauier: "The officers and representatives of eight thousand members of international labor unions in Vancouver emphatically protest against Belcourt's proposed amendment to the criminal code. We demand the same internationalism for labor as now enjoyed by capitalists. We refuse to be legislatively branded as criminals and will not tolerate disruption of our unions. Answer. R. P. Pettipiece, secretary Trades and Labor council. "The following telegram was also ordered to R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative party at Ottawa: "Representatives of eight thousand Vancouver unionists unanimously condemn Senator Belcourt's amendment to the criminal code as a scurrilous attempt to legislate unions out of existence. Cowan pledged to oppose bill and suggested securing you assistance. Answer. R. P. Pettipiece, secretary Trades and Labor council."

Despite the decreased purchasing power of wages, the coal mine owners of Frank, Alberta, have attempted to force a reduction of five cents a ton on pillar work. And while the "foreign" owners are at it they have announced that hereafter there will be no closed shop—that is, union coal diggers. The old agreement expired on March 31. The company officials say there is "nothing to arbitrate," and, as the miners refuse to be hamstrung by the Lemieux Act, the miners will take a holiday, pending the result of negotiations. The district board will stand for no reduction in wages. Mass meetings are very much in order and evidence there were the standard of the control of the standard of the control of the standard of the st

A Teamsters' union has been reorganized in Vancouver, this time by the central body. The officers are: President, A. K. Vourchier; Vice President, Jesse Miller; Secretary-Treasurer, Geo. E Wilson. Twenty-seven signed the charter list and over a hundred more will be enrolled at the next meeting in Labor hall on April 9th, tonight. The old union went on the rocks during the U. B. R. E. strike of 1903.

W. H. Scott, president of New Westminster, B. C., Trades and Labor council, was in Vancouver last week seeking the co-operation of other Pacific coast unions, protesting against Senator Belcourt's proposed amendment to the criminal code, which renders international unions as outlaw organizations. President Scott says, however, the workers should not, if consistent, make any kick against Ottawa legislators carrying out the mandates of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, inasmuch as they themselves made possible the election of all the lawmakers on earth.

The Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners, through a committee, consisting of George Atkinson and B. Gilmore, appeared before the A. P. of L. executive council meeting at Washington last week and asked for a decision on the appeal taken from the Tampa convention of the Building Trades department. The council declared that a conference must take place between the two organizations before any decision could be rendered on the subjet.

whether Anne Morgan had Lot tried to organize unions in opposition to the union already in existence. The reply was that neither Anne Morgan nor any other woman had tried to do this, and Anne Morgan is hepself a member of the W. T. U. S. The employers tried to make it appear that these women had abandoned the strike for the sake of influencing public opinion adversely, but Miss Morgan had denied the report over her own signature in the

Answers to Questions on the Strike

Some time ago I addressed three questions to the women comrades in New York on the relation of the suffrage women to the strike. Comrade Malkiel replied to me without however, answering any of the questions. I asked these questions because I was convinced we ought to know how the social forces in operation work out the social forces in operation work out the strike was won.
