low much stink can U.S. stand

THIS IS THE BACKDROP of Corruption Unlimited against which the news of the week is being presented:

• In New York City a Senate Crime Investigating subcommittee has brought to the surface an interlocking directorate of crime-in-government and government-in-crime that puts to shame the piker operations of Boss Tweed. The revelations linking racketeer boss Frank Costello to the Mayor's office and the Governor's mansion in Albany make today's headlines read like the American Labor Party's campaign literature last November. The thousands upon thousands of words in the daily press (and the vapid editorial comments) contrast pungently with the blackout which greeted the ALP accusations last fall. • In Key West, a golden toasty brown Harry S. Truman, natty in two-tone sport shirt (he wore green trunks for his St. Patrick's Day swim), called the press together for a sermon on morality and the judgment of history. In the face of scandalous dealings in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation involving a dozen members of the White House gang; in the wake of the Senate investigation which trailed the stink of corruption from Kansas City to Blair House, the President said with straight face that his Administration and his assistants were all honorable men. He said you couldn't judge a President while he was alive (Jefferson is only now coming into his own, he asserted). Perhaps with a cold-chill vision of tomorrow's headlines, he asked that America wait at least a generation before judging Harry Truman.

AMID PREPARATIONS to deport Frank Costello (made with indecent haste lest more political rocks be turned over), Sen. Tobey (R-N.H.), a member of the investigating subcommittee, announced that the committee mail shows the people of America want the investigation to go on.

It will not go on unless the mail keeps pouring in, because the people in a position to stop it are the same people whose names may crop up any day in the investigation. If you want the investigation to go on until the real manufacturers and manipulators of America's policy are exposed, write TODAY to Senator Estes Kefauver, Senate Crime Investigating Committee chairman Senate Office vestigating Committee chairman, Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.; or to Senator Charles Tobey. But do it today.

WAR & PEACE 'Waning scare' perils war program; McA. adds 'oomph'

TELLING a Key West press conference he expects to go down in history as an "apostle of peace," President Truman admonished 22 Congressmen who asked him for concrete disarmament proposals against "Russian propaganda." A Gallup Poll showed his popularity at an all-time low. From Washington the Wall St. Journal reported:

Waning war scare brings a let-down here and across the country. The Government doesn't know what to do about it. . . . If they preach war is imminent, they may set the stage for a worse let-down later. . . . But if war drums are muffled, the arms effort will slow down.

The paper quoted "some White House thinkers" as complaining that "the Reds are backing down deliberately in Korea" in order to "take the comph out of war preparation." Conoomph out of war preparation." Con-gressional leaders said they wouldn't act now on the President's demand for new taxes. The House decided to take up UMT and the draft after recess.

NOT ENOUGH KILLING: In Tokyo, where the government was preparing to outlaw the Communist Party in the wake of the John Foster Dulles visit, wake of the John Foster Dulles visit, Gen. MacArthur acted to put some "oomph" back into war preparation. Two days after Korean Commander Gen. Ridgway said an end of the war at the 38th Parallel would be "a tremendous victory" for the UN, MacArthur said there would be no sense in stopping there. Rep. Walter Judd (R-Minn.), ardent supporter of MacArthur and Chiang Kai-shek. ex-Arthur and Chiang Kai-shek, ex-plained:

"The Korean operation doesn't make sense, in fact, is a criminal sacrifice of American lives unless It is part of a plan for all of East Asla."

for all of East Asla."

Judd urged that the Korean war be used to make sure "the Communist rule across the border in Manchuria is broken." Chiang, to whose "guerrillas" in South China the U.S. is supplying not only "substantial arms but also important leadership" (Newsweek), was eager for the fray. He said he would accept U.S. command of his forces, meanwhile invited Nazi Gen. von Falmeanwhile invited Nazi Gen. von Fal-kenhausen to become once again his military adviser, as soon as the former Nazi occupation chief in Paris is freed.

WHY THE WITHDRAWAL? UN delegates speculated on the reasons for the Chinese-Korean withdrawal from Seoul toward the Parallel. Belief that it was political, designed to effect a stalemate conducive to negotiations, spurred behind-the-scenes peace activ-ity. The Sanctions Committee marked time, heard Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb call it "a study group." The first meet-ing of the Peace Observation Committee, set up under the Acheson Plan, elected Colombia chairman — giving Latin America the chairmanship of seven major UN committes, five in the field of security.

In Paris deputies of the Big Four entered the third week of debate on an agenda for the proposed foreign ministers' conference. The Western

"Oh, Senator, you are a card!"

That's what gambling tsar Frank Erickson and his lawyer are saying in effect to Senator Tobey who is suggesting, at the Kefauver Crime Investigation hearings in N.Y., that U.S. public servants are feathering their nests at tax-payers' expense in vast corruption tie-ups with the underworld. Senators, press and public are having fun at the Kefauver circus while innocent victims of our nation-wide political corruption, like Willie McGee, wait to pay the price of "not having the right friends": death.

But there is no laughter here

In Taegu, a little barefoot boy couldn't hold out any longer against cold and hunger and keeled over in the street—dead. "Death is commonplace in war," said the breezy caption accompanying the picture.

Don't let up on Willie McGee!

By Vito Marcantonio

Chairman, American Labor Party, N. Y.

As I write these words at deadline on Monday, March 19, the execution of Willie McGee, the Mississippi Negro who has faced the electric chair four times in his state on a perjured charge of rape, has again been stayed by the Supreme Court of the United States (see FREEDOMS, p. 4.)

by the Supreme Court of the United States (see FREEDOMS, p. 4.)

Four times, progressive America has succeeded in staying the hand of white supremacy in this case. For there cannot be the slightest doubt that Willie McGee—like the Martinsville Seven—would have long since been lynched by the courts of his state without the magnificent fight which has been waged by the Progressive Party nationally, the American Labor Party in New York, the Civil Rights Congress and others who have made this case of cruel injustice an international concern.

THE FIGHT FOR THE WILLIE McGEES, FOR THE TRENTON SIX, FOR ALL VICTIMS OF RACE PREJUDICE MUST GO ON! HAVE YOU DONE

HAVE YOU WRITTEN OR WIRED PRESIDENT TRUMAN, WHOSE INTERCESSION CAN SAVE THE LIFE OF WILLIE McGEE, AS IT COULD HAVE SAVED THE MARTINSVILLE SEVEN?

YOU MUST DO THIS—TODAY—FOR IF YOU DO NOT, THERE IS NO ONE ELSE TO CARRY ON THIS FIGHT.

In the March 1 GUARDIAN I read a story of the Price family in the Bronx and their stand against the insane atom bomb drills that children are asked to perform in public schools. Their action was a welcome lift to all those people in this country who want to sit down and negotiate a just and honorable peace rather than act brave about "patriotically" sending somebody else's son or brother to fight and perhaps die in a war that doesn't exist. When you compare what they did against the fact that no country in Europe is carrying on air raid drills the way this country is, then you can be doubly sure that they are right, My hat is off to the Price family and I will support their or any similar movement.

I would wish to be done by, and it grieves me to the quick to see how our U.S. State Dept. is burdening its people with a load of guilty, hateful actions toward other nations. Every commentator you hear, every newspaper you read, and even some of the ministers of our churches exude hate. Why? Because they have been bought off with money. "Money," my Bible says, "is the root of all evil." When a nation becomes so greedy that it says, "is the root of all evil." When a nation becomes so greedy that it will plunge its sons into the Hell of War for the almighty dollar, it will soon find itself on the down grade. God will not allow this murder of the innocents to go on forever. The end is at hand, and the time when "go to now, ye rich, and howl for the miseries that have come upon you"—prophesied centuries ago by St. James—will come to pass.

Return compliment, please

THE WHOLE GUARDIAN STAFF has been pitching in this month on (for us) the monumental job of sending an extra, wrapped GUARDIAN to every subscriber, with a postpaid return "sub" envelope enclosed. If you haven't received yours yet, it will be coming along before the end of the month.

When it comes, we would all consider it a personal compliment and a good deed indeed if you will do what we ask with this extra copy:

PASS IT ON TO A FRIEND, neighbor or job-mate and use the return envelope as a quick and easy means of getting just one new subscriber added to the GUARDIAN readership.

There is a short note with your extra paper, explaining how the idea came about and suggesting several ways of utilizing it as soon as you get it.

HE MARCH 7 ISSUE, with three pages of reports from Prisoners of War in North Korea, is especially timely and unique, since this material has appeared in no other paper in America. If you haven't already done so, you ought to pass that issue along to someone else even if you don't have a "sub' envelope yet to go with it.

Make that extra GUARDIAN count for our side, The Editors won't you?

Duffy on peace party

NEW YORK, N. Y NEW YORK, N.Y.

I hasten to assure Mrs. Edith Geiger (GUARDIAN, Feb. 21) that the progressive peace party suggested by me in your issue of Feb. 7 will not, as I envisage it, affect the existence of the Progressive Party, or any other party or group.

Party, or any other party or group.

I hoped, and still hope, that the Progressive Party, while retaining its identity, can see its way to cooperate with others on a broad peace program. That cooperation may not call for any re-organization of the Progressive Party. I suggested re-organization only to make that cooperation possible.

While I, as a Catholic priest, do not intend to take any official part in the operation of any political party, I may, and do emphatically state, that in order to survive as well as to prevent a world holostate, that in order to survive well as to prevent a world hol caust, we must have a new parageared for peace based on just it can, and should, include all tisting parties, groups and indivuals who are interested in pea Whatever name it eventually go it must be formed immediately.

it must be formed immediately.

I still think that Herbert C.
Holdridge, an anti-militarist retired brigadier general, who can talk to the militarists in their own language and debunk them in the eyes of the people, is the man to lead such a broad peace movement. He has a peace program and also a program for economic reconstruction at home. program for economic tion at home. (Rev.) Clarence Duffy

Is Holdridge the man?

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

The idea of a broad national peace party is a very good one. It should be the first order of business and the broader the better. But I differ with Rev. Clarence Duffy, who wonders if Mancantonio should be the candidate, because of the times. Instead he proposes an army man, Ret. Brig. Gen. Herbert C. Holdridge.

Holdridge has been operating here

Holdridge has been operating here Holdridge has been operating here in California for some time now, and while some liberals are attracted by his anti-capitalist and anti-Truman program, he is heartily welcomed hereabouts in the most reactionary circles. I am wondering if Father Duffy is proposing this candidate in the spirit of St. Paul who wanted to be all things to all men? In the world of politics when push comes to shove such men always fall on the wrong side of the fence.

Happy people

Happy people

ALBUQUERQUE. N.M.

Conditions in Warsaw, from where I just returned, are in sharp contrast to the U.S. People look happy, well-fed, well-clothed, live in decent houses although only five years ago their city was total rubble. Their plans for the future are a guarantee that they desire peace fervently. They stand strongly united in the work for peace, and their open activities, supported by their Government, made us — the U.S. delegates of our "free and glorious land"—look pathetic.

In Czechoslovakia the same situation greeted me. Shops in Prague were filled from morning to night with crowds of happy people, doing their shopping with a zest and joy that made me light-hearted. Knowing their language. I engaged them in conversation. To my anxious questions on their carefrees spending, they answered buoyantly: "We have no need for saving. Why shouldn't we buy the things we want to have?"

I thought of the many people here in need of necessary things, not being able to buy them even though they work. The possibility of sickness and loss of job makes them frugal just to be able to lay some cash aside for a little security—so they are constantly living below decent standards. Anna Medie

Is a new Korea being shaped up for the Balkans?

By Tabitha Petran

AN epidemic of Pentagon-State Dept. pilgrimages to the historic "powderkeg" areas of the Balkans and east Mediterranean has now continued for six months, and raised the question of whether a "new Korea" is in the making there. A similar U.S. military-diplomatic flurry of activity in the Far East heralded the Korean war; the signs were not correctly read till after the shooting started, when documented evidence showed the world that, behind the propaganda screen of "red aggression," aggression by "our" side had been long and actively planned.

The situation in the Balkans and Near and Middle East is far more complex, but there are many basic parallels. Evidence for the "red aggression threat" is even less convincing than it was in Korea. It is not too early to begin fitting together the pieces of Washington's activity in the area.

HOW IT BEGAN: The story goes back to the long-held U.S. plan to build a Greek-Yugoslav-Turkish axis against Russia. The aim was suggested by John Nuveen, ECA chief in Athens, as early as Feb. 27. 1949:

"Greece constitutes the access to the Balkans, that is, to the countries behind the Iron Curtain, We believe the door has already been half opened by Yugoslavia." In the spring of 1950 Greek-Yugoslav relations were restored, following the visit to Athens of the U.S.'s Belgrade Ambassador and Washington's insistence that "liberal" Gen. Plastiras (with whom Yugoslavia's Tito said he would negotiate) take the Greek premiership. There followed a U.S.-Greek decision that Greece should not demobilize; a succession of Anglo-U.S. naval maneuvers; construction of 13 U.S. airbases in Greece; transformation of Britain's Mediterranean island colony, Cyprus, into an A-bomb base. Yugoslavia got its second $20,000,000 loan from Washington.

SUMMER, 1950: Greek Parliament demanded invasion of Albania; Greek mobilization speeded. Differences over Macedonia brought mutual recall of Greek-Yugoslav representatives. Athens paper Kathimerini reported July 23 that Washington, annoyed at the slow progress, was pressing heavily for the Athens-Belgrade military alliance.

Fall, 1950: Athens gripped by war hysteria. Albania repeatedly, vainly, complained to UN of Greek border provocations. Hungary reported increasing Yugoslav violations of its borders.

November: Washington agreed to send Tito food in exchange for more Yugoslav war-material exports. This agreement followed by resumption of

November: Washington agreed to send Tito food in exchange for more Yugoslav war-material exports. This agreement followed by resumption of Yugoslav-Greek relations, with Yugoslavia using Greece's port Salonika; expulsion of the Albanian mission from Belgrade; Yugoslav charges that its

A soldier on sentry duty on a crag of Mount Piera

Cominform neighbors were building huge armies, with attacks on "Soviet imperialism" now parallelling those of Washington; U.S. Chief of Staff Bradley's testimony that all efforts were being made to bring Yugoslavia into the Atlantic Pact.

In Greece, Premier Venizelos welcoming Yugoslavia's return of Greek war prisoners said: "We may soon join hands in face of a common foe." More U.S. war material arrived; military talks were begun with Turkey; and Washington's favorite Greek, former Premier Tsaldaris, urged the government to "... take all necessary measures to insure that the recently-restored diplomatic relations with Yugoslavia will become the starting-point for the new onslaught which we all expect in this corner of Europe."

JAN., 1951: Greek government moved its capital "temporarily" to Salonika, to speed joint Yugoslav-Turk-Greek military action, said the Greek press; reimposed the "Third Decree" under which 4,000 political opponents were sentenced to death; banned the opposition paper Demokratikos; hurriedly completed, under U.S. direction and with U.S. funds, a bridge over the Maritsa River dividing Greece and Turkey. Adm. Robert Carney, C-in-C of the U.S. Mediterranean Fleet, took part in conferences at Athens, Malta and Ankara (Turkey). Athens press said his talks had the dual purpose of forming a Mediterranean pact and preparing a move on Albania; Free Greece Radio said that at Ankara plans for Greek-Yugoslav-Turk attack on Bulgaria and Albania were agreed on.

With Moscow pressing for talks on Western rearming of Germany, Washington took up as its major propaganda diversion Tito's charge that Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria have 600,000 men under arms and that conditions on his frontiers are "not much different from war-time."

The facts offered little substantiation of Tito's charges against his neighbors, which were made on Nov. 8, five days after receipt of Moscow's first note asking talks on Germany. For example one of the three main industrial centers being built up under Hungary's Five Year Plan is in the Pees-Mohacs area 15 to 25 miles from Yugoslavia's border, and a big new textife factory has been built 10 miles from Yugoslavia at Szeged — developments hardly suggesting that Hungary plans war in this direction.

FEB., 1951: N. Y. Times reported a U. S. plan in active discussion for "some kind of common understanding" between Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia to handle "the Soviet satellites."

Feb. 12: Asst. Secy. of State George W. Perkins, top Morgan spokesman in the State Dept., conferred with Tito on the "mounting threat to Yugoslav security."

Feb. 14-21: Adm. Carney, Asst. Secy. of State McGhee and Secy. for Air Finletter participated in Istanbul conference of Greece, Turkey, Arab states, Israel, Pakistan. U.S. air attaches from all the Middle East conferred at Ankara. Announcement following conferences that the U.S. was rushing to completion A-bomb bases in Turkey and getting many new bases ringing Russia in that area.

Feb. 18: Visiting Albania's border, Greek Premier Venizelos said he hoped "next time we meet" Albania will be "liberated." U.S. Gen. Jenkins, visiting the Greek army in that region, said he was "satisfied." Venizelos told the paper Vima, Feb. 19:

"With the assistance of Britain and the U.S. we shall transform Greece into a springboard from which a blow will be delivered against the heart of the Soviet Union."

. Feb. 24: Belgrade's Politika said Albania was heading for "catastrophe." Free Greece Radio warned of a Balkan war precipitated by calling a Yugoslav-Greek attack "legitimate defense" against the alleged aggression of the People's Democracies.

MARCH: Albania and Hungary reported intensifying border provocations. Tito issued a White Paper charging a "permanent little war" on his borders, indicating he might take his case before UN. N. Y. Times editorialized, March 19:

The Greeks and the Turks have made it plain that they belong in the camp of the free men. . . They should be welcomed finto the Atlantic Pact] at this time as they have been in the past.

If war comes in the Balkan powder-key two things will be contain. It keg, two things will be certain. It will come as culmination to a relentless series of provocations by Washington; and the stage will have been set, as in Korea, to make those nations most interested in peace (who have recently made any war incitement a major crime under law) appear as the aggressors.

But the heart of the question remains: Can a Balkan war be localized, as was the Korean war? If, as seems likely, it can only set off World War III—for which Washington admits it is not yet ready—the provocations may stop short of the final and irretrievable step.

'Waning scare' perils Truman's program

powers still refused to discuss Germany's demilitarization in terms of the Potsdam agreement, which Washington calls "out of date." Even the N.Y. Times admitted the concessions were coming from Russia. Conferences on German participation in an Atlantic Pact army were proceeding simultaneously in Paris.

"SOCIALISTS" IN KNOTS: Britain's Labour Government, committed to basic nationalization at home, angrily protested the vote by both Iran's houses of parliament to nationalize the $1,400,000,000 Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., 53% owned by the British Government. Anglo-Iranian is the world's largest single oil-producing operation, accounting for 6% of world output. Its Abadan refinery, biggest in the world, is a chief supply source for the British Navy, and also supplies Rockefeller's Standard Oil of N.J. and Socony Vacuum under a 20-year contract.

Anglo-Iranian pays workers so little that Middle East crude costs 40c a barrel to produce as compared to $1.70 in the U.S.; its yearly profit is about 200 times Iran's entire national income. Recently it offered to up Iran's royalty from 56c to 84c per metric ton, with 14c additional in lieu of income tax.

THE FOOTBALL CURE: In the House of Commons the assassination of Premier Razmara, who opposed oil nationalization, was treated as the posible Sarajevo of World War III. Moscow's Pravda charged it was U.S.

in origin: Razmara, original U.S. strong man, had ousted American economic advisers, prohibited Voice of America broadcasts, tried to make the rich pay taxes, signed a trade agreement with Russia. (The latter was hailed, said British historian Philip Toynbee in Teheran at the time, with almost incredible enthusiasm from Right to Left.)

Washington's fight to oust British influence from the Middle East would not be hurt by nationalization, especially if Iran relied on U.S. aid in developing its oil. But the social and political repercussions could undermine the whole Anglo-U.S. war program. Iran's National Front is already demanding nationalization of the Rockefeller oil companies on Bahrein Island (Persian Gulf), which it claims. In Egypt the demand has been raised for nationalization of the Suez Canal.

The poverty-stricken Middle East is in ferment. In the two months in which Irar is to study how to effect nationalization, Western oil imperlatists will be working overtime to block it. Meanwhile, "as a good-will gesture at a crucial time" (N. Y. Times), a visit to Iran by Penn State soccer team was "hastily arranged by the State Dept."

To Generalissimo Franco he sail all anti-communists could bury minor ideological disputes and "pool their resources in one pot." Franco en husiastically agreed to merge his mite with U.S. millions in any pot. His answer was seen in the press which became slavishly pro-U.S. and plainly hinted that Spain, not Britain or France, was Washington's reliable ally.

To the people of Spain the arrival

To the people of Spain the arrival of Griffis in Madrid carried this plain meaning: only Spaniards can free Spain—certainly not the U.S. or UN—and a peaceful transition to a less oppressive regime is impossible.

GENERAL STRIKE: What happened in Barcelona last week was in a sense an answer to Griffis, though the causes ran deeper. On March 12 more than 250,600 workers went on strike. Shops, factories, bars and restaurants closed down; street cars and taxis stopped.

When scab cars ran, few passengers boarded them and those who did were removed politely but forcibly by people who followed in passenger cars.

If Paris or London had been shut down so successfully it would have been surprising. In Spain, where suspected dissenters are shot daily, the 24-hour strike was a miracle and a Franco rushed five cruisers to Barcelona; police rounded up hundreds of persons. Next day the government or-dered employers to fire all who were arrested for any reason, to dock the workers for the day they struck. Those who paid their workers would be "put at the disposition of His Excellency, the Civil Governor of the Province."

Those who closed their shops would likewise be punished.

Troops guarded the streets throughout the week, but the atmosphere remained so tense that new strikes could break out at any time.

NEW AXIS: The demonstration grew out of stark hunger. Prices in Spain have been soaring. Food, scarce and diverted to black market stalls, is skyhigh. Trolley fares have risen 60-90%.

It is not an isolated flash-in-the-There have been riots in Madrid and elsewhere, symptomatic of a vast unrest, though not yet a revolt.

Franco's uneasy dictatorship rests all its hopes on Washington. The U.S. sanctioned a $62,500,000 loan to Spain. Of this, the Export-Import Bank has handed Franco to date $12,500,000—with strings. It was stipulated that the money must go to the purchase of U.S. cotton and machinery, things Spain needs but not so vitally as food.

On Friday the U-S. authorized another $5,000,000, this time allowing Spain to buy wheat. (Considering fasgraft and racketeering. Franco would need at least $1,000,000,000). On the same week-end Franco let it be known he would send his troops across the Pyrenees if the U.S. sent arms. AP reported that France, on the other side of the Pyrenees, had "misgivings."

The subject was peace, brought to Washington last week by 2,500 delegates from 36 states in support of the six-weeks-old American Peace Crusade. But the delegates managed to talk to most of their Congressmen; a message was left for the Secretary of State by a committee headed by Prof. Robert Morss Lovett, University of Chicago professor and former governor of the Virgin Islands; a committee headed by Rev. Dudley Burr called on the Justice pt. to protest prosecution of Dr. W. B. # Black saves McGee in 11th hr. stay

NOT since the height of the great Scottsboro campaign 17 years ago were so many Americans so active in behalf of civil rights as last week. By its stubborn defense of Willie McGee— Mississippi Negro sentenced to death for "rape," in a lynch atmosphere and without elementary protection of his citizenship rights—the Civil Rights Congress had roused thousands to action to save his life. In every major U. S. city, and many a smaller one, there were roving picket lines, petition drives, street meetings, protest rallies. On scores of campuses students or-ganized protest actions. Unions, both eft- and right-wing, urged freedom for McGee.
In New York City 1,500 unionists

picketed City Hall, appealed to Mayor Impellitteri to speak up on the case. In many cities, as in Harlem, there were uninterrupted prayer vigils in churches. On Tuesday a continuous vigil and picket-line began in Wash-ington in front of the White House. On Wednesday 12 white women from seven states arrived in Jackson, Miss., to appeal for public support in that state.

peal for public support in that state.

On Friday Josephine Baker, the Negro stage star who became the rage of Paris and is now appearing in New York, wired Mrs. McGee:

My heart goes out to you and all those who are working to save your husband's life. As an artist who has no political affiliations but who believes in human freedom and justice everywhere... I passionately hope your fight to win justice for your husband will succeed, for your sake and our people's. Love.

NEW HOPE, NEW EFFORT: Many frowned on these activities; some said they did more harm than good. But on Thursday, after all other state and federal courts had rejected all appeals, Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black granted a stay of execution and gave defense attorneys until March 20 to file briefs, on the basis of which the full court would decide whether it would review the case or not. The court meets next on March 26. It was the fourth time the CRC had saved Willie McGee's life after an execution date had been set. Far from lessening its militant activities, it planned to step them up. To all its supporters it held

The GUARDIAN breaks into Tabi-tha Petran's series of articles on "Who Wants War—and Why" (to be re-sumed next week) to present this unique peep into the mind of a big Pittsburgh steel man. We do not suggest that this man is typical of the tycoons now making vast fortunes out of producing for war, nor that his trend of thought has great political importance. We present for its human interest the picture of a boss who has not entirely lost his mind and soulcaught up in a mechanism far stronger than himself which, while it fabulously enriches him, he knows must lead to disaster for all.

for reasons which should be evident we can neither give the name of the steel tycoon nor of the wellknown magazine contributor who wrote the article. The authenticity of what follows is, however, guaranteed.

I have to do something with it."

A few moments later he said: "I'm very depressed. I think there's going to be a war and what I called you up here for is to ask if you know how it can be stopped. It's probably wrong for me to talk this way because it's against my way of life, but this war has got to be stopped somehow."

He went on to explain why he thought the war couldn't be prevented. "The trouble is that the Republicans haven't got anybody. Dewey, a dope, nobody will listen to

COR three hours last Saturday, prosecution and defense in the murder trial of the Trenton Six made their opening remarks to an all-white jury of eight men and six women whose selection took two weeks. The arguments foreshadowed a trial

N. J. runs all-woman slate for peace

CANVASSERS with GUARDIANs under their arms were out ringing doorbells again last week. In at least three states Progressive Parties launched election campaigns.

In New Jersey, where elections are scheduled for November, the PP in Essex Co. (Newark) filed a slate of 13 women, one for the State Senate, the other for Assembly, PP state chairman other for Assembly. PP state chairman Katharine van Orden said:

"We are running a peace ticket made up entirely of women candidates because peace is the paramount issue for voters and women feel most acutely the effects of war and a war economy. . . Most of our candidates have sizeable families; many have Jobs. They are housy women who always thought they had no time for politics. But today they are alarmed at the terrible dangers into which our country is being dragged by the irresponsible leaders of the two old parties."

Heading the ticket is senatorial candidate Ruth Segal Lerner, exec. seev.

Christine Belle, Marion Edwards (Montchair); Fannie Tushnet, Anita R. Vigoda (Maplewood); Jessie Scott Campbell, Amanda S. Henry (East Orange); Edna W. Flavelle (West Caldwell); Virginia Travis (Nutley).

FOR PEACE IN MICH.: In Michigan, where the deadline is April 2, all candidates pledged to peace and civil lib-erties for whom the PP is stumping appear on the ballot as non-partisans.

• For Supreme Court Justices: C. Lebron Simmons, former Wayne Co. asst. prosecutor, first. Negro to run for the office; Morton A. Eden, former asst. counsel for ClO United Auto Workers.
• For U. of Michigan Regents: Louis J. Cleage, Negro physician; Richard Fox, Lansing AFL leader.

For State Board of Education: Buth St. Aubin, Detroit housewife.

• For State Board of Agriculture: Robert Travis, former UAW leader, now a farmer in Armada; Jesus Gonzalzes Jr., farmer in New Haven.

CALIF. WATCHES RICHMOND: Richmond, Calif., may elect its first Negro councilman. Twice before Negroes have been nominated but their strength was always divided. This year there is only one Negro candidate: Lofton L. Fow-ler, Contra Costa County central committee chairman of IPP, president of the local NAACP branch, a union longshoreman and ordained deacon.

Richmond grew during the war from a population of 25,000 to over 100,000 as workmen streamed into the shipyards. Half of the population still lives in "temporary" government hous-ing projects. Negroes number 13,000.

Fowler is campaigning for enforce-ment and strengthening of Richmond's fair employment regulation, permanent low-rent housing, improvements nent low-rent housing, improvements in federal housing projects, public works program, public transportation system, repeal of the city sales tax and prevention of any rent rise. Elections, under non-partisan rules, are scheduled April 10, with a run-off of the top six candidates on May 8.

Committee officers also charged school officials with serving children in school cafeterias "poorer food at higher prices, delivered under most unsanitary conditions."

Running for a member of the board, Jack Berman of IPP tailied up the swindles, noted that in some school departments no Jews or Negroes had been hired in 33 years, then said:

"But the crowning glory of the entire board is its position in support of the cold war. They have succeeded in scaring hell out of school children."

LABOR

Treed leaders squirm as rank and file act

ABOR leaders, businessmen and government circled each other in elaborate maneuvers last week.

The United Labor Policy Committee (top brass of CIO, AFL and RR Brotherhoods) were trying to wriggle down from a limb. They found themselves there when they left the mobilization agencies without in any way untying

The President, vacationing in Key West, expressed no concern at all; but habor leaders, pretending they were being begged to return, set a price. It included granting authority to the Wage Stabilization Board to settle labor disputes. In effect it would reduce active bargaining to a lawyer's argument before a tribunal composed of businessmen, businessmen-in-government and officially-licensed labor leaders. It would brand most strikes as defiance of a government agency.

COY BUSINESS: Government officials framed a "compromise." It pro-vided that the board would hear all It procases, even involving the union shop and seniority, where the President cer-tified the case as affecting defense.

Businessmen then assumed a coy position, pretending to refuse the position, pretending to refuse the greatest power ever handed to them. In a joint statement the Chamber of Commerce, Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers and Business Advisory Council agreed to accept jurisdiction over wage disputes, balked at hearing other cases, then conceded that if labor and government insisted, they would take all the power forced upon them.

Labor's leaders militantly insisted on surrendering.

PASS THE BUCK: Labor's rank and file would have no part of the riga-marole. The CIO United Packinghouse Workers had won a raise of 11c an hour from the meat companies. (Average wage is $1.34 an hour.) The companies, passing the buck, said they would cheerfully grant the raise but the Wage Stabilization Board would have to approve. Wage Stabilizer Eric Johnston, passing the buck just as adroitly, said he could see why some exception might be made in the packers' case even though the raise would break the ceil-ing, but he was powerless to make it until the labor leaders returned to the board. Murray, Green & Co., still out on the limb, could find no one to whom to pass that buck, workers to a 3c-an-hour raise. The union said simply that if they didn't have their full 11c by March 25, they would strike. AFL meat packing unions were set to walk out with them.

Some demonstrated in the stock yards. And in Washington, while Sta-bilizer Johnston insisted he could not raise the ceiling, a union delegation raised the roof. Johnston said later: "It was like a rodeo."

TURMOIL IN TEXTILE: Textile workers, too, had been combating the wage freeze on the picket line. For three and a half weeks, some 70,000 CIO Textile Workers Union members had been on strike. They had de-manded a raise of 15c an hour plus pensions and other benefits totaling an additional 6c. (Present wage: $1.47 an hour.) It was the first time in three years that union leaders had asked for a raise, much less called a strike.

An additional 200,000 union workers were about to strike the cotton mills for a 12% raise over their present $1.31 an hour. Faced with a nation-wide, spreading strike, the TWU leadership resumed factional warfare. President Emil Rieve, who for many months had been chopping down the supporters of exec. vice-pres. George Baldanzi, fired his opponent's most reliable spokesman, Sam Baron, the union's Canadian director. Baldanzi mobilized his forces for a fight. The two are separated not by principle, but by an unequal share of power.

FREE FOR FACTIONS: Last week tentative settlements came in cotton and wool and left the leadership free to fight each other.

The woolen agreement provided for 12c an hour instead of 15c, plus fringe benefits of 1½c instead of 6c; the cotton agreement, for a 71/2% raise instead of 12%. But the companies said they couldn't pay the raise until the Wage Stabilization Board approves. The buck had been passed again.

Emil Rieve, as TWU president, can-not receive the raise his union won until Emil Rieve, member of the Wage Stabilization Board, attends meetings and okays the raise. Union president Rieve may have to argue it out with Stabilizer Rieve.

In all the confusion, union president Rieve made it clear that the mill own-ers would not suffer. He said that if the board disapproved the raise, "we will not strike the managements for something they can't help."

Some 550 rank-and-filers of the union felt otherwise. They rejected the  $7\frac{1}{2}\%$  increase shortly after Rieve accepted it for them, and struck the Huguet Fabrics Division of Stern and Stern Textiles Inc. at Hornell, N.Y.

NFU litrs charters of 3 state groups

AST JANUARY Aubrey Williams, president of the Alabama Farmers Union and publisher of the Southern Union and publisher of the Southern Farmer, wrote in his paper:

-Everybody hates war—that is, everybody but a few greedy heavy-industry people. Yet nobody has the courage any more to denounce war as a way of getting a peace-ful world. ful world. . . .

Williams had the courage, kept on denouncing war. Last week the na-tional board of the National Farmers Union, at the recommendation of president James G. Patton, revoked the charter of Williams' state organization, lifted those of Ohio and New York at the same time.

Earlier the NFU had ousted Clifford Durr from his post as legal counsel to the NFU Service Corp. Durr's wife had signed a petition urging with-drawal of U.S. troops from Ko drawal of U.S. troops from Kor Durr has held many top government posts and is active in civil rights cases.

THEY'RE FOR PEACE: The board revoked the charters on the technical grounds that membership in each of the three states had fallen below the constitutionally-required 1,000. But the New York organization — the North Eastern Division headed by Archie Wright—has 5,000 members; the board ignored a request from the organization for an extension of time in which to meet its per capita payment to the national office. Wright has been outspoken in behalf of peace. Patton and the top national officials support the government's mobilization policies.

First rift in the NFU on the peace issue came when Patton publicly attacked Fred Stover, president of the Iowa Farmers Union and an outstanding spokesman for peace, and tou hed off an effort to oust him; the case is still in the courts. The Iowa situa ion was up for discussion at the board meeting, but a bus caravan of Lwa farmers turned up and the board took no action. But if and when a fu ure showdown comes, the votes of New York, Ohio and Alabama—in support of Stover—will not be there.

BOOKS Inside the UN or, armtwisters unlimited

THE INDEPENDENT socialist magazine Monthly Review has done progressives a tremendous service by round-ing up in two articles—and now publishing both as a pamphlet—the story of Wash-ington's arm-twisting to dis-tort the UN into a tool of its own policy.

The first article explains how the arm-twisting machine operates, through an elaborate and costly network of "hand-in-velvet-glove men" who keep tabs on "weak" or balky delegates and "work them over"using mainly economic pres-sure on their governments—to force them in line with State Dept. policy. It brilliantly an-Dept. policy. It brilliantly analyzes the corroding effects on UN delegates of the background of luxury and lies against which they must live in New York (the luxury makes them most reluctant to go home)—and of the "American way" of color prejudice, anti-sentitism and pressure to anti-semitism and pressure to conform which reaches right into the largely American-ad-ministered UN itself.

SPELL BREAKER: The sec-ond article, relating Washington's struggle against an effective international human rights covenant, is "must" reading and vital ammunition especially for those still under the "liberal" spell of Eleanor Roosevelt, UN Human Rights Commission chairman. How those who talk most about democracy have relentlessly democracy have relentlessly emasculated the Atlantic Charter principles—on which smaller, weaker, still-exploited nations pinned such fervent hopes in 1945—is the most sordid and revealing story of our era.

The author of these simple, factual articles clearly knows his UN from long and infi-mate experience, and presumthat reason must remain anonymous.
