A SOVIET HONOR GUARD GREETS F.D.R. IN REVIEW AT THE YALTA AIRPORT

NEW YORK, N. Y., APRIL 4, 1955

WAR & PEACE

Nhy Yalta papers were published

By Tabitha Petran

PUBLICATION of Washington's Yalta Papers coincided with final ratifica-tion of W. German rearmament by the tion of W. German rearmament by the major U.S. allies, a new war crisis brewing in Formosa Strait, and the President's promise to use atomic weapons in the next war—a war most of his top advisers want to launch now against China.

The record of Roosevelt's effort a decade ago to lay the basis for 50 years of peace throws into relief the present perilous insolvency of the men and of peace throws into relief the present perilous insolvency of the men and forces that wrecked his policies.

Reopening of Yalta had several aims: to discredit diplomacy; further to embitter international relations; and to erase for good what the N.Y. Times as long ago as Sept. 29, 1945, called "an era almost everyone [in the U.S. and British governments] wants to forget"—that is, the era based on the concept of co-existence with the socialist world. Above all, it was another ominous sign of the rigidity of Washington's policy, a gesture of frustration, "a noise to distract public attention from . . . tension in the Far East . . . and what we do about the H-bomb" (Thos. L. Stokes, N.Y. Post, 3/22).

LOSE FACE OR BLOOD: The big question today, wrote James Reston (NYT, 3/25 & 27) is "how the U.S. is (NYT, 3/25 & 27) is "how the U.S. is going to get out of the Quemoy-Matsu affair without loss of face or loss of blood"; but the Senate, preoccupied with Yalta and "who leaked the Yalta papers to the N.Y. Times," is looking the other way. This, at a time when Washington's "best-informed persons"

"... officials in Washington are now talking about tactical atomic weapons as if they were instruments of mercy that could knock out military targets more neatly and quickly than 'conventional' weapons."

rentional' weapons."

The Democrats had as little to offer as the Administration: the N.Y. Post (3/27) castigated their Congressional leadership's "fantastic failure to perform the role of an intelligent, conscientious opposition on the explosive topic of Matsu and Quemoy." Sen. George (D-Ga.) Foreign Relations Committee chairman, who is credited with winning Senate approval of last Januwinning Senate approval of last January's "preventive war" resolution, proposed—on the eve of French Senate debate on W. German rearmamenttalks with the U.S.S.R. "as the real hope of avoiding war." But George had no criticism of the Administration's course in Formosa Strait; he was as "cautious" as the State Dept. when Soviet Premier Bulganin indicated a "positive" attitude toward Eisenhower's extremely qualified suggestion for eventual four-power talks,

THE GRAND DESIGN: Now that W. German rearmament is virtually ratified, the West may try to use such a conference, and the public support there is for it, as a build-up for its long-threatened ultimatum to the socialist world—or as Business Week (3/12) put it, "to enforce co-existence—on our terms." (For years, Washington on our terms." (For years, Washington has said it could negotiate only "from strength," but strength is not needed to bring about negotiations when the other side offers them.) If public opinion is to be alert to this danger and to insist effectively on genuine negotiations, the myths of the past decade must be punctured. The Yalta Papers furnish additional evidence to do this. do this

At Yalta the three powers agreed on a basis of post-war policies and an apparatus for international action, set up later at San Francisco and Potsdam, Legal commitments often had to be stated in broad terms, since the precise conditions under which agreed principles would be implemented were not known; and it was sometimes impossible to agree on detailed arrangements. Yalta's "grand design for peace" depended, therefore, on the good faith with which it was translated into action. The U.S. papers and Churchill's earlier version! make clear:

Senate bill bans papers 'promoting world communism

SENS. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.) and Margaret Chase Smith (R*Me.) on March 22 introduced a bill in the Senate to ban from the mails and from interstate commerce all publications, foreign and domestic, which "promote" the cause of "world communism." The measure was referred to the Senate Post Office Committee which Johnston heads; he said he will ask it to "take immediate action."

Johnston said the bill was aimed precifically at the Beilt and Sunday.

specifically at the Daily and Sunday Worker, but it is so worded as to in-clude all publications which the Post Office could define as "communistic propaganda matter." It would embrace not only newspapers, but periodicals, pamphlets, books and films.

pamphiets, books and films.

BAN IS "STUDIED": Johnston charged that the government is "subsidizing" the Daily Worker at the rate of about $40,000 a year. He introduced with his bill a letter from Postmaster Gen. Arthur E. Summerfield reporting that in 1954 1,673,186 copies of the Daily and Sunday Worker were mailed; postage paid amounted to $3,653, but actual cost of transportation was $40,056. Summerof transportation was $40,056. Summer-field refrained from pointing out that all publications enjoying second-class mailing privileges are "subsidized" in the same manner, and that large-circulation publications like the N.Y. Times or Life cost the government many millions a year.

Summerfield also informed Johnston that "there is recently under study in that "there is presently under study in conjunction with the Dept. of Justice the question whether the Daily Worker, the question whether the Daily Worker,

The Worker, and similar publications are subject to the Communist Control Act of 1954. Editor & Publisher, influential trade journal, commented:

"We have pointed with pride to the fact that... we tolerate all shades of opinion. Now we are on the verge of telling the world we can no longer put up with a spokesman for the Moscow party line in our midst.... We don't think the Post Office should be entrusted with dictating our political or ideological reading fare."

What a hard time the liars and cheats in the Justice Dept. are having. As long as Matusow was on their side, he was a paragon of virtue and therefore quite reliable; but now that he is against them lo! he is not at all reliable—and a habitual liar, etc.

I never thought I would live to see such a day when the government itself would connive with criminals to convict innocent men. But I guess I'm incurably naive, for looking over modern history I can see that this is nothing new. I think the thing that shocks me most of all is the way this corruption has seeped all through our national life, right down into the ranks of the majority of the workers themselves. That the only hope for this country, and other lands too, resides in the workers, I fully acknowledge; and I do not understate in the U.S. But on the whole, the American people are occupied almost exclusively with their comforts and gadgets, and though many of them do acknowledge the wrong and injustice of our present day life, not one in

Just the other day Elsenhower said what we need is more young men of the type of Vice-President Nixon in government. Yes, sir! I heard it with my own ears. REPORT TO READERS

The Unforgotten Man

YE EDITORS are just emerging, tired but glowing, from an experience we hope to share with every GUARDIAN reader: the production of our Roosevelt-UN memorial LP record, "The Unforgotten Man."

Quickly we must tell you that we didn't undertake this alone: we had the glad co-operation, guidance and unstinting hard work of some of the finest talents there are in theater, radio, television and music, and in the very special art of record-making.

This team, we are pleased and proud to report, has recaptured even beyond our best hopes in spunky, haunting words and music an era which saw the American people at its greatest busting through reaction and machine bossism to strike at poverty, prejudice, repression . . . going places behind the best-loved leader in all our memories.

CAN OR WILL WE, the people, do it again? This is the challenge implicit in "The Unforgotten Man." Franklin Delano Roosevelt believed we could and would. In the undying words of his last message, written the day before his death ten years ago this month, President Roosevelt said:

"I measure the sound, solid achievement that can be made at this time by the straight-edge of your own confidence and your resolve. . . The only limit to our realization of tomorrow will be our doubts of today. Let us move forward with strong and active faith."

These words (from the message of April 11, 1945, remembered best for the theme "The work, my friends, is peace . . .") come at the conclusion of our FDR record, with a mighty chorus swelling the United Nations Hymn as the finale. With due respect to another record currently making the rounds, we think perhaps we should have subtitled ours "The Invigorator."

ECHOES OF FDR, despite the ten-year bipartisan effort to silence them, will not die out. On Wednesday last, representatives of the Progressive Party and the N. Y. American Labor Party appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to oppose German rearmament. They were able to cite many fellow-opponents, but none except Sen. Flanders among our nation's political leadership today. Our PP-ALP spokesmen were true echoes of FDR who told the Congress on March 1, 1945, in his report on Yalta Conference:

"We made it clear at Yalta, and I now repeat that unconditional surrender; means the complete disarmament of Germany; the destruction of its militarism; the end of its production of armament; the dispersal of all its armed forces; the permanent dismemberment of the German General Staff, which has so often shattered the peace of the world."

WE URGE YOU, during this month of Commemoration (and, we hope, rededication), to bring the echoes of FDR into your living room, to your friends, to the people of your community. Your copy of "The Unforgotten Mañ" will be mailed out the day your order is received (see ad on p. 3).

The man who got Gore gets an old-fashioned tanning

By Lawrence Emery

ROMAN REUTER runs a mink farm ROMAN REUTER runs a mink farm and a restaurant in Sauk City Wis.; his biggest ambition is to become the American Legion's state commander. When LeRoy Gore, former editor and publisher of the weekly Sauk-Prairie Star, launched his unsuccessful Joe Must Go recall campaign against Sen. McCarthy, Reuter rounded up a few followers and formed a Door For Gore ciub. ciub

The Madison Capital Times calls Reuter "a watch-fob McCarthy" but Gore says he succeeded in creating a "wedge of hatred" between Gore and the community—and a few weeks ago Gore was forced to sell his newspaper to Elman and Robert Anderson from Gare was forced to sell his newspaper to Elmer and Robert Anderson from Minnesota. Reuter considered this one of his life's prime achievements; early this month he went to Washington for Legion conferences to promote his candidacy as state commander, and while the state of the service of th there decided to be interviewed by the press. He had this to say of Gore:

"We are very happy that he is not going to publish our local newspaper. We just don't want him as editor. He used about a hundred feet of rope and finally hung himself. There was only one thing for him to do and that was to fold up. He brought it on himself. I'm not looking for any particular praise for what I've done. I figured it was my duty and I'm glad it turned out as it did, with Gore out of business."

"IT ISN'T THE THING": For the Sauk-Prairie Star's new owners, Reuter had this advice—stay out of politics:

"If they keep their noses clean they'll be all right. Expressing poli-tical opinions in small communities isn't the thing to do. Newspapers in places like Sauk City get along well by staying out of politics." He explained that by "politics" he anything controversial on any level of government. He added:

"I'm still for McCarthy and always will be."

The boast and the warning stirred p a fair storm in Wisconsin. The Capital Times said Reuter

". . obviously now intends to set himself up as the supreme judge of what weekly newspapers may publish. . . It is astounding that this man should be serving on the American Legion's Americanism committee and aspire to the office of state commander. . . "

Said James A. Martineau, present state commander of the Legion:

Philadelphia Evening Bulletin HOME TO ROOST

"Any citizen who thinks he should tell a newspaper what to print is a bit too presumptuous. Roman Reuter, as a private citizen, has a perfect right to make any statement he wants to, but he does not speak for the Wisconsin American Legion."

"GALL & IGNORANCE": The two top officials of the Wisconsin Press Assn. denounced the Reuter statement; one called it "one of the most asinine re-marks I've ever heard." Both agreed;

"It is the duty of weekly and daily newspapers to comment on every political situation which affects their community."

Few if any weeklies in the state had supported Gore's recall movement, but none had challenged his right to stage it; most were adverse to Reuter's stand. Joseph W. Bollenbeck, state commander of the Military Order of World Wars and a member of the Madison Legion post, said:

"Reuter's campaign to ruin LeRoy Gore's business because of divergent political views was the height of un-Americanism. His words and actions constitute a deplorable exhibition of gall and ignorance."

NEW NOSES WILL SMUDGE: When the commander of the Sauk City Legion the commander of the Sauk City Legion post called on him to apologize, the furor got too much for Reuter; he wrote a letter to the Star disowning his interview as "completely false." But the Milwaukee Journal, which first published it, revealed that it was written by the Journal's own Washington correspondent who had sent it with a covering memo that Reuter "would denounce me and claim he was misquotnounce me and claim he was misquot-ed" if he wrote "a bad story." The Journal said editorially:

"... Reuter puts himself above the Constitution, which guarantees a free press and the freedom to believe and say what an individual chooses. This is a fuehrer philosophy. Sauk City might well wonder who named Reuter its dictator—and the Wisconsin American Legion ought to ponder carefully what kind of a man this is who aspires to lead an organization that is proud of its dedication to the American way."

The first issue of the Sauk-Prairie Star appeared without editorials, but the second contained "A Letter to Reuter" signed by both Andersons:

"Right now our noses are nice and clean, but we expect that we'll find a little smudge on them from time to time. . . We don't believe we would be doing our duty if we were to slink down the back alleys afraid to open our mouths to express our opinion on any subject that might be the least bit controversial." Editor & Publisher called Reuter's

"... an outright negation of the basic American principle of free exchange of ideas... We are glad that leaders of the Wisconsin Press Assn. have challenged the statement and the new owners in Sauk City have indicated they cannot be intimidated."

CRC head says probers fabricated charges on funds

CIVIL RIGHTS CONGRESS exec. secy. William L. Patterson, at the recent hearing before the State Joint Legislative Committee on Charitable & Philanthropic Organizations, said the committee had "deliberately fabricated committee had "deliberately fabricated charges . . . then fed the press unfounded accusations as if they were based on facts." The scare-headlined implication was that CRC had misused funds on a vast scale. In a statement filed with the Committee, CRC now declares the following "were deliberately concealed" at the hearing:

· "CRC has been in the forefront" "CRC has been in the forefront" of civil-liberties campaigns "against trial by Congressional investigation, Smith-Act persecutions" and "reaction's effort" to hamper the Negro people's struggle "to free themselves from . . racist persecution."
 CRC sponsored publication of We Charge Genecide, documented account of "the crime of government against the Negro people."

o CRC in many civil rights cases—Willie McGee defense, for instance—retained lawyers to conduct proceedings in state and federal courts.

• CRC entered the Trenton Six case "after the men had been unjustly convicted on a frame-up murder charge and condemned to death"; retained counsel, appealed, won reversal "while conducting a mass campaign to acquaint . . the people with the facts." CRC "voluntarily took steps to turn over responsibility. . . to local people and other organizations" after new trial was assured.

• CRC funds have always been banked, regularly audited, and were voluntarily submitted to the committee. Its income tax returns have been carefully checked by the Internal Revenue Dept. whose representatives in 1954 spent 20 days going over the books in the CRC funds had been directed to purposes other than been diverted to purposes other than Patterson branded the hearing "the Tatterson branded the hearing "the latest step in a campaign waged by Mr. Tompkins, a disgruntled politician who is eagerly trying to persuade the Legislature to give him another $50,000 to add to the $50,000 he has already spent in his so-called investigation." Tompkins was challenged the compilete kins was chairman of the committee when he was defeated for re-election by present chairman Larkin.

Patterson said he expects N. Y. County D. A. Hogan, now in possession of the CRC records, to attempt a further distortion of them when the Subversive Activities Control Board opens hearings on the CRC in the N.Y.C. Federal Court House on April 5.

But since Mrs. Sprague's husband was unable to work after an auto accident, she couldn't afford to auto accident, she couldn't afford to help her grandmother financially. To duplicate Mrs. Sprague's care, welfare would have to pay $45 a week for a nurse or $120 a month in a nursing Learning of the welfare decision, Townsend clubs in the state held mass meetings, protested until the department restored Mrs. Quiggle's full payment. But the story remains as an example of how Old Age Assistance works in the U.S. for 2½ million OAA recipients.

"UNMET NEEDS": Administered by states—with federal aid up to $55 per person for those not covered or insufficiently covered by Social Security—OAA payments averaged $51.55 nationally last August. State averages were from $26.41 in Mississippi to $32.76 in Conspecification and seems of Pomona College researchers found 79% of the couples and 37% of the single OAA recipients with "unmet needs."

Medical care, drugs, clothing, false teeth and glasses, in that order, and food topped single folks' lists. Half of the state's 65-plus group thought the grants ($69 a month) were too low.

Out of her $52.25-a-month OAA check, frail Mrs. Alla Meyers, 73, of Wonewoc, Wis., had saved $60 "to buy winter necessities." But the welfare director, declaring "a pensioner had no right to accumulate money," confiscated it. The newspapers raised a storm and the county ordered the director to return it. She refused but put it into return it. She refused, but put it into a "burial fund" for Mrs. Meyers. The county came across with another $60 for Mrs. Meyers, but there remained the contradiction of a zealous budget keeper in a supposedly humanitarian position. position.

THE PENNY-PINCHERS: An elderly man in Washington state received a $ monthly rent rebate last year to repair a stove. Later the welfare changed its a stove. Later the welfare changed its mind about the rebate and, though the money was spent, deducted $9 from each monthly check until the total re-

These are only a few of the indignities which OAA pensioners face under the attitude that the OAA payments are "charity." State or local administrators, pressed for funds for a variety of purposes, get regulations enacted to lower payments or cut more people off OAA lists. Last November a Los Angeles County Grand Jury found $286,000 had been taken from the Bureau of Public Assistance to help pay for improved parking facilities at the Hollywood Rowl

Some state laws enforce a limit to the real or personal property a recipient may own ($100 in some southern states, $1,000 and over in others); residence requirements or U.S. citizenship (11 states); "lien laws" which give 33 states first claim on any estate left by the recipient. the recipient.

THE CEYLON CASE

Mrs. de Silva sues airline, charges it held her captive

ON a bitter March day one year ago Rhoda Miller de Silva, an American married to a Ceylonese, walked into the GUARDIAN office wearing sandals and a thin cotton dress. She had just flown 12,000 miles, having been suddenly de-ported—at the instance of U.S. auth-orities, as she later charged in a letter President Eisenhower-from her

Last month Mrs. de Silva filed suit against Trans World Airlines, charging kidnaping and false imprisonment and claiming $200,000 damages for TWA's complicity in separating her from her husband and forcibly returning her to the U.S. She charges that TWA held the U.S. She charges that TWA held her captive on the plane, as at Bombay, or on the ground in the plane's immediate vicinity as at other fields on the flight. Charges also include preventing a writ of habeas corpus from being served after it was issued by Ceylon's Supreme Court, and preventing her from contacting her husband or friends who might have come to her aid en route. The TWA thus explained its action: "We are carrying out orders to return you to New York—by force, if necessary." Ceylonese newspapers on March 18, the day after the abduction, reported 'that "two American Security officers' assisted" in her deportation and "police at airports were alerted." and "police at airports were alerted."

and "police at airports were alerted."

The complaint was filed in N.Y. Federal Court by attorney Charles Recht. A provisional committee to aid Mrs. de Silva (PO Box 771, Church St. Sta., N.Y.C.) has been formed under sponsorship of James Aronson, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. B. DuBois, Rev. Howard Melish, Dr. Willard Uphaus and others, Its immediate object is to raise necessary funds to make the story more widely known and to explore legal aspects of the case. A fact sheet (copies on request) is available to aid in bringing the case to local newspapers' attention.

Negro College Fund hears Dulles give pep talk for war

THE United Negro College Fund was organized in 1944 by Frederick Douglass Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, as an "educational chest" through which 31 private colleges make a pooled appeal for help to improve Negroes' opportunities for higher education. Member colleges, currently training about 23,000 on small endowments and low tuition fees, look to UNCF for 10% of their operating budgets. Last month UNCF, whose program a fact-sheet describes as "non-controversial, non-political," held a convocation at New York's Metropolitan Opera House; its invited speaker, following Morehouse College (Atlanta) president Benjamin E. Mays, was Secy.

Dr. Mays said that in 15 years there

Dr. Mays said that in 15 years there would be five million young people in U.S. colleges and universities, and asked: "Where will we put them? Can we double the dormitories, the teachers, the classroom space, the laboratory facilities and the endowments in 15 years?" To this implication of a long period of peace, Dulles seemed to be replying when he told the educators:

"In the past it has unbapping

"In the past it has unhappily proved necessary to forego peace in order to assure the blessings of liberty. We dare not be blind to the fact that that may happen again."

THEIR MASTER'S VOICE: The 31 heads of Negro colleges listened politely. They included John A. Bacoats of Benedict College, Columbia, S. Carolina—whose Governor George B. Tim-

Kenya: The war that can't be won

JOMO KENYATTA (Left) For Britain no victory

AFRICA'S EASTERN COAST In the center, the tinderbox

By W. E. B. DuBois

SAW Jomo Kenyatta in 1945 at the Fifth Pan-African Gongress in Manchester, England. He was a big man, yellow in color, intelligent. Today he is in jail convicted of planning the rebellion in Kenya against British oppression. Whether or not he actually planned this rebellion, I do not know; but never in modern history was a nation more justified in revolution than the 5¼ million black people

Kenya is a fertile island set in a desert sea. Kenya mountain rises from its north-eastern corner, exactly on the Equator, covered with eternal snow. Of the 225,000 sq. miles in Kenya over half is desert. Of the rest, 3,000 white settlers own 16,700 sq. miles of the most fertile land and 5,250,000 Africans occupy, without ownership rights, 52,000 sq. miles of the property.

5.250,000 Africans occupy, without ownership rights, 52,000 sq. miles of the poorest.

This land originally belonged to cattle-herding tribes without permanent settlements. English missionaries, inspired by Livingstone's appeal, first entered followed by explorers seeking the source of the Nile. Then came the colonial imperialists, England seeking to outrun the Germans. Finally England seized the territory, confiscated all the land and sold it to whites at 2 cents an acre in baronies of 10 to 100 thousand acres.

HUNGER & FORCED LABOR: Of the good land held by whites, only 6% is under cultivation. On the native reserves the density of inhabitants per sq. mile is 674, and half this land is unsuitable for cultivation. Driven from their land, the Africans began to enter the towns, where many thousands of them lived without shelter in conditions of near-starvation. Laborers and servants are paid an average of $5.18 a month, clerks and artisans from $11 to $42.

$5.18 a month, clerks and artisans from $11 to $42. In the legislature the 29,000 whites have 14 elected representatives; the 90,000 Asiatics have six, and the 24,000 Arabs one elected and one appointed; the 5,251,120 Negroes have no elected representatives but the Governor nominates six to speak for them. The natives pay three different kinds of direct taxes, and indirect taxes are placed on their necessities instead of on luxuries. They have been in the past subjected continually to forced labor, legal and illegal; the successors of the missionaries, including Anglican bishops, once insisted that the settlers should have the right to force the natives to work.

THE PEOPLE ORGANIZE: In the last 25 years the policy of England has vacillated. Commission after commission has made proposals, but the basic situation has not been changed. Of the Negro children 7 to 11 years old, a third are in school, and Kenya spends about $6 a year on their education. The black folk of Kenya made every effort to obtain relief. They built and ran thousands of schools of obtain relief. They built and ran thousands of schools of their own. They made close contact with the British Labour Party but got nothing from them. They organized the "Kenya African Union" and held a conference attended by delegates from all Kenya. They declared in 1947:

"That the political objective of the Africans of Kenya must be self-government by Africans for Africans, the rights of all racial minorities being safeguarded.

"That more land must be made available both in the Crown Lands and in the highlands for settlement by Africans.

Africans.

"That free compulsory education for Africans, as is given to the children of other races, is overdue.

"That the deplorable wages, housing and other conditions of African laborers must be substantially improved and that the principle of equal pay for equal work be recognized."

The Union grew to 10,000 members. Patriotic songs were written and seven weekly newspapers established. Two representatives were sent to England to plead with the British people, but no substantial relief came. As a resident white said: "We are going to stay here for the good of Africa, and as long as we stay we rule!"

WAR THAT CAN'T BE WON: At last in 1952 open rebeliion flared in Kenya with secret organization, murder and arson. As to just how far this went, how many were killed and how the economy was disrupted, there has been no official report; but clearly the whites were frightened. A state of "emergency" was declared on Oct. 20, 1952. By June, 1954, $22,500,000 had been spent to suppress the rebellion and the fight is now costing $2,800,000 a month.

The Royal Air Force has dropped 220 tons of bombs in nine months. British troops and police have killed 130 Africans for every European killed in the Kenya war, without counting the number of Africans killed by R. A. F. bombs. The Kenya African Union has been suppressed and its leaders jailed. Jomo Kenyatta said when sentenced to seven years in jail: WAR THAT CAN'T BE WON: At last in 1952 open rebeliion years in jail:

"What we shall continue to object to is discrimination in the government of this country, and we shall not accept that, in jail or out of it... What we have done and shall continue to do is to demand rights for the African people as human beings."

As D. N. Pritt, the great British lawyer, says:

"A cruel and brutal war has been raging for nearly two and a half years to hold the Africans in subjection and maintain the settlers as masters of the best land in the country. This war cannot be won by the British in a military sense. If it could be, it would still leave unresolved, and indeed untouched, every agrarian, economic and national grievance, and would thus inevitably lead to a new war in the near future."

merman, referring to the U.S. Supreme Court's decision against jimcrow schools, recently said the American people's "greatest constitutional problem today is how to curb the presently uncontrolled authority" of the Court; and Harold C. Warren of Tougaloo Southern Christian College, Mississippi—where one county, Tunica, with an 80% Negro population, spent in 1952 $270.69 per white child, $21.36 per Negro child. Dulles told them it was "inspiring to be here with those who are seeking to give real content to the concept of equal opportunity for all without regard to race, religion or class," and chided the U.S.S.R. for its "callous unconcern" for its people's welfare weltare.

In calling the roll of distinguished Negro educators, the name of W. E. B. DuBois was hurriedly mentioned at the convocation. In a recent GUAR-DIAN article (2/14) Dr. DuBois wrote:

"It is fair to admit that most American Negroes, even those of intelligence and courage, do not yet fully realize that they are being bribed to trade equal status in the U.S. for the slavery of the majority of [black and colored] men. When this is clear, especially to black youth, the race must be aroused to thought and action and will see that the price asked for their co-operation is far higher than need be paid, since race and color equality is bound to come in any event."

APRIL 25, 1945 - THE MEETING ON THE ELBE

Joe Polowsky's 10-year crusade

TEN YEARS AGO this spring, Pvt. Polowsky, U.S. Army, and five other i's rowed across the Elbe River at Strehla, 75 miles south of Berlin. They reached the other side at 12:30 p.m. on April 25, 1945, and—after four years as allies in World War II—the American and Soviet armies first met. In the presence of 200 corpses from the night's fighting (one observer remembers especially that of a child with blue eyes and long brown hair clutching crayons in one hand and a doll in the other) Russian and American soldiers shook hands, drank friendship toasts, pledged that war would not come again.

On the same day in San Francisco, representatives of their nations and 44 others were meeting to establish an international organization for the enforcement of peace which became the United Nations. They heard President Truman declare: "If we do not want to die together in war, we must learn to live together in peace." to live together in peace.'

SPRINGTIME WORK: Joe Polowsky, civilian, never forgot the promise of April 25, 1945. For 10 years he has been working to get that date celebrated as "the most hopeful day of the century." It was, as Gen. Eisenhower said on its fifth anniversary in 1950, "almost the peak of our establishment of world

Every spring for 10 years, Polowsky, who lives at 1507 N. Hoyne Av., Chicago, Ill., has left his job to work on his project. He wrote his former com-

Americans and six Russians who met in 1945 can meet on this tenth anniver-sary, perhaps in the E. German town of Torgau (where a memorial to the or forgati (where a memorial to the meeting stands), or at the UN or Mos-cow or London, or Washington, where vets of the Rhine crossing celebrated with President Eisenhower last month.

the six Russians. Polowsky will visit the UN himself this month.

Polowsky, who said he's a Taft Republican, gave himself 10 years to achieve his goal. Every spring, he says, something has come up, like Dienbienphu last year, to dim his dream. But this year he thinks chances are the 'best ever for recognition of the idea of friendship as the basis for permanent peace.' It has been more or less a one-man project. When the 10 years are up, he said, he'll write a book on philosophy and get married. 'Only a single man could have afforded such sacrifices for history,' he said.

But he's far from "single" in his desire for peace. Five years ago the Washington Post editorialized:

"There is a good deal of merit in the suggestion that the IUN General Assembly recommend appropriate commemoration of April 25 as a day of international amity. The good will that encircled the globe on that occasion must not be lost if our civilization is to survive."

The next few weeks will tell. It will ke a big helping hand for Joe Polowsky.

Mr. Molotov agreed that it be dropped, though he reupon which anti-Soviet dictatorships were forced. At Yalta, Churchill aimed:

● To restore in E. Europe British influence and the fascist and semi-fascist forces through which it had been maintained. Hence his stubborness against Stalin's demand that Poland's government be based on the Lublin government, set up out of the underground a year earlier. Stalin's demand was finally granted because FDR understood Russia's need for security in its army's rear and a friendly Poland on its borders after the war. But in the spring, after FDR died, Churchill and Roosevelt's successors whipped up a crisis over Stalin's "violation of Yalta"—i.e., his insistence on what had been agreed about the Polish government.

• During this period Churchill announced he would arm and equip up to 250,000 additional "London Polish" troops. On May 13, in a world broadcast, he said an "iron curtain" was descending over Europe; growled at the formation of "totalitarian, police" governments in E. Europe (they were being formed as provided at Yalta); proposed, in somewhat guarded but nonetheless plain terms, an Anglo-U.S. alliance to police the world. ANNA LOUISE STRONG: "I WAS IN MOSCOW AT THE TIME OF YALTA"

The facts about Russia, China and the Japanese

By Anna Louise Strong

WAS in Moscow at the time of Yalta, and in Manchuria later, and can offer some facts against the distortions now being made by inspired commentators—now when Americans think our forces won all the war, that the Russians and Chinese needed only to do the dying while Washington took over the pieces and fixed up the world.

The picture is created that Roosevelt sold out to Stalin, giving him a lot of the Far East in return for negligible help in the war with Japan; that Stalin sold out China by promising to deal with Chiang and then turning Manchuria over to the Communists; and that this is the foundation of our Far East troubles today. All these statements are lies.

FAR EAST FACTS: In Moscow at the time of Yalta

formation was kept from Chiang at the time because it was common knowledge that his higher generals were in traitorous contact with Japan. When the terms were revealed finally, Madame Chiang personally thanked Roosevelt for them; so also, in Moscow, did T. V. Soong.

It was thus the moving of Russia's armies eastward, even before they struck, and before the A-bomb fell, that completed Japan's demoralization. This, together with the A-bomb, brought about the surrender of Tokyo. But the Soviet armies alone, by their drive through Manchuria, brought about the surrender of the mighty Japanese Manchurian army and empire. This was a bloody conflict. It was fast, but only because the Russians first piled up overwhelming force and used all they had learned from

THE BIG THREE AT THE YALTA CONFERENCE Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Roosevelt and Premier Stalin

I heard the views of Russians and of U.S. and Brit-I heard the views of Russians and of U.S. and British diplomats, and know what the situation was. In the Far East, our Chiefs of Staff estimated it would take 18 months more to win unless Russia entered in force; nor was this estimate absurd. For while it is true that Japan was ready to surrender even before we used the A-bomb, this was because she knew the Russians were moving east to strike her and she could not survive a second front. She made the surrender offer to Russia, hoping to keep Russia neutral.

In Manchuria the situation was this. Chiang gave it up in 1931 and ordered the Manchurians NOT to fight Japan. Japan had in Manchuria her strongest army, far stronger than all the armies America fought in the islands. It was feared that even if the emperor surrendered, the Japanese army in Manchuria would set up an empire; and neither Chiang nor America nor both combined could have conquered this empire if Russia merely stayed neutral. It was also feared that Russia, at her own pleasure, might conquer Manchuria and nobody could stop her.

THANKS FROM MME. CHIANG: It was therefore considered a triumph to get Stalin to agree to smash the Japanese in Manchuria and then to turn Man-churia over to China, subject only to the same joint possession of the railway and the Port Arthur naval base that she had had with China before. The inHitler's blitzkrieg. I think it possible that Russia lost as many men against Japan as America did during the whole war.

HOW RUSSIA SAW IT: U.S. commentators sneer at Stalin's statement that he had to have "reasons" to persuade the Russian people to attack Japan. I happen to know that Stalin's statement was strictly true. Russians were war-weary; many families, whose men had barely survived the war with Hitler, resented losing them in a war with Japan. Russians were also ashamed to be breaking a treaty of nonaggression which they had with Japan. Stalin could take them into that war only for two reasons; 1) the reason of national interest, that they would thus regain what they lost to Japan in 1905; 2) the reason of future world peace, that thus the Far East would be rationally stabilized, and Russia's only port, Vladivostok, would have a protected access only port, Vladivostok, would have a protected access to the Pacific.

These were sound and true reasons. They were righty recognized by Roosevelt. Today they are unrecognized by Americans who unilaterally dictated to conquered Japan, and disregarded the Chinese and Russians, who had done as much as the U.S. to win that victory.

CHIANG'S SELF-DEFEAT: The statement that Russia sold out Chiang is also not true. The Soviet army drove down the railway and highways, took control of the cities, invited Chiang to send in his government and army. Chiang flew in the administration for all the Manchurian cities; the U.S. brought in his army while the Soviet army protected Chiang's his army while the Soviet army protected Chiang's government for nine months.

Chiang was defeated by two facts. He sent in non-Manchurians to govern a proud people, and these governors looted and made common cause with the former Japanese puppets; he followed this up by an army from south China, who could not even speak the Manchurians' language and who were as foreign as and worse behaved than the Japanese. The Russians were officially asked by Chiang to stay on, to give him time to consolidate government. They complied for nine months, even though they found themselves in the embarrassing position of protecting Chiang's attacks on the Manchurian people.

position of protecting Chiang's attacks on the Main-churlan people.

When Chiang's army, advancing into Changchun, killed Russians there, the U.S.S.R. announced withdrawal. At Chiang's request she then evacuated Chiang's civil governments from the northern cities of Manchuria, and sent them home via Vladivostok, to keep the Manchurian people from killing them.

THOSE JAPANESE ARMS: As for the giving of arms by Russia to the Chinese Communists, this was everywhere denied in Manchuria when I was there in 1946. Gen. Lin Piao, commander of Manchuria, said emphatically:

"The Russians gave us nothing. Whatever arms they brought with them, they took back with them. Whatever arms they took from the Japanese, they took back to Siberia or destroyed on the spot."

All evidence I found showed this to be true. However, the Russians, knowing the Manchurian population to be hostile to Japan, did not bother to clean up the county garrisons; they contented themselves with smashing the main Japanese concentrations

General MacHindsight

THAT Japan could not be defeated in 1945 merely THAT Japan could not be defeated in 1945 merely by U.S. invasion of that country itself, and that the Russians were needed in force for the formidable task of destroying the Japanese army in Manchuria, was well understood at the time by U.S. Pacific commander Gen. MacArthur. At a meeting in Hawaii on Feb. 28, 1945, MacArthur told Secy. Forrestal—according to Forrestal's record in his Diaries—that "a very large part of the Japanese army" was in Manchuria and that reserving of U.S. strength for the assault on Japan itself "could not be done without the assurance" that this army "would be heavily engaged by the Russians. He expressed doubt that the use of anything less than 60 divisions by the Russians would be sufficient.

. . . He felt that we should secure the commitment of the Russians to active and vigorous prosecution" of this campaign in Manchuria.

of the Russians to active and vigorous prosecution" of this campaign in Manchuria.

This confirms what Miss Strong writes and makes nonsense of MacArthur's statement March 23 that "my views were never solicited... Had [they] been ... I would most emphatically have recommended against bringing the Soviet into the Pacific war at that late date. To have made vital concessions for such a purpose would have seemed to me fantastic."

and leaving the outlying garrisons to their fate. Local Manchurians cleaned up isolated Japanese and took their arms. The arms thus came into the hands of local peasants of all persuasions—bandits, Kuomintang men, Communists—but basically any Manchurian peasants who wanted arms and had guts. Chiang could have had their allegiance by giving them good government and restoring order. He didn't; the Communists did. It was only by the process of organizing peasants for self-government that the Chinese Communists finally got Japanese arms.

Braden loses plea, $40,000 bail stays

TWO steps backward and one step forward was the score last month in the Louisville "sedition" case stem-ming out of Negro Andrew Wade's purchase of a house in a white neigh-

Complaints made by Wade against three white neighbors, who had admitthree white heighbors, who had admitted to an investigating grand jury that they burned a cross before his house, were thrown out of Quarterly Court. Grounds were that the grand jury had not indicted the three; Wade's lawyer, C. Ewbank Tucker, said he would seek those indictments by a new grand jury.

Carl Braden's request that his bail be cut from $40,000 to $10,000 to leave be cut from $40,000 to $10,000 to leave him free while appealing was rejected March 18 in the Kentucky Court of Appeals. While stating that in his judgment "a bond of half the amount would suffice," Judge Coleman Wright said he could not overrule the trial judge who set the bond. Braden is in the La Grange reformatory under 15-year sentence for "sedition" resulting from his helping Wade buy a house.

RELIGIOUS GROUP'S CONCERN: Braden's appeal, and trials for his wife Mrs. Anne Braden and five other white people who aided Wade, which were delayed for lack of a court stenog-rapher, are expected to resume shortly. The court has rehired, with a raise, the stenographer who quit after he was ordered to furnish at his own expense million-word transcript of Braden's trial. Mrs. Braden's trial date is April 18.

The step forward: The Religious Freedom Committee announced that their lawyer, Royal W. France, is preparing a friend-of-the-court brief to aid Braden's appeal. According to the group's Religious Freedom News, the brief will stress that:

"The fight against segregation is encouraged by the major religious denominations as constituting religious social action, and the punishment of Carl Braden for participating in such Christian social action raises a genuine issue of a state's interference with religious freedom in contravention of the first amendment to the Constitution."

Carl and Anne Braden are active members of the Protestant Episcopal church and one of their co-defendants, Miss Louise Gilbert, of the Church of the Brethren. RFC (118 E. 28th St., N. Y. C. 16) is an interracial and inter-faith group of clergy and lay people.

Fritchman radio time and station changed

Rev. Stephen H. Fritchman, minister of the First Unitarian Church of Los Angeles, heard during the past year on KABC, has changed stations and hours. His program. "Unitarian Time." will now be heard Sunday evenings at 6:30 on XERB 1090 k.c., the San Diego 50,000-watt station. Fritchman, for seven years at the First Unitarian Church of Los Angeles, was formerly editor of The Christian Register, the national Unitarian magazine in Boston. He is president of the Community Medical Center in Los Angeles.

EVEN THE REPUBLICANS HOWLED

Ike picks Wood, denounced as Kluxer, for Subversive Board at $15,000 a yr.

THERE is no lack of deserving Republicans looking for jobs, but President Eisenhower on March 4 picked a Georgia Democrat for a three-year appointment to the Subversive Activities Control Board at $15,000 a year. His choice, ex-Congressman John S. Wood, was promptly denounced by a vice-chairman of the Georgia State Republican Central Committee as a former leader of the Ku Klux Klan.

John Wesley Dobbs, prominent Negro leader of Atlanta, wrote Atty. Gen. Brownell on March 7:

"I have been reliably informed that ex-Congressman Wood was not only a member of the Ku Klux Klan, but was one of the leaders of that or-ganization in his community. I think your office should have this information concerning a man whose duty will be to pass on the merits of subversive organizations, since Ku Klux Klan, itself, has been designated a subversive organization."

AN OLD CUSTOM: Wood, who headan old custom: wood, who head-ed the House Un-American Activities Committee in the 82d Congress, served six terms in Congress; he did not seek re-election in 1952. In 1946 he was elected with less than 15,000 votes out of a total population of over 235,000 in his Congressional District

As head of the Un-AAC he refused in 1946 to investigate the KKK despite insistent demands from several parts of the country where it showed signs of revival. On June 5 that year he said:

"The threats and intimidations of the Ku Klux Klan are an old Ameri-can custom—just like illegal whiskey making.

Wood's attacks on the radio industry succeeded in driving most liberal com-mentators from the air in 1946. His committee's report for that year listed the criteria for determining subversive newscasters; they were deemed guilty if they criticized any of the following: the State Dept.; "anti-Russian and anti-Communistic" newspapers; Fran-co of Spain; Peron of Argentina; Gen. Douglas MacArthur; Chiang Kai-shek. Special notice was given to those who "openly call for the dissolution of the British empire."

TELL KILGORE: *In 1947 Wood introduced a bill to prohibit the closed shop; in 1950 he sponsored a bill to outlaw industry-wide bargaining. Under provisions of the Brownell-Butler bill adopted by the 83d Congress, trade unions now come within SACB's scope.

The Emergency Civil Liberties Committee has appealed to Sen. Harley Kilgore, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, to hold public hear-ings on Wood's appointment before recommending his confirmation by the Senate. The ECLC urges all interested persons to write Sen. Kilgore and to their own Senators to oppose confirma-tion of Wood.

THE READER'S FORUM

On independent political action

N A "Statement for Discussion by Progressives" (GUARDIAN, 1/10) this publication's general manager John T. McManus, an officer of the Progressive and American Labor parties, argued for "a national independent political party on the ballot in the 1956 Presidential elections." The ensuing discussion has far exceeded our capacity to print all the views expressed, despite rigorous editing of all letters, some of which have been 3,000 words long. In this further selection, many of the California letters refer to decisions of the IPP at Fresno in January, following the loss of its ballot status in 1954, rejecting the concept of a new national third party at this time as premature but reserving "our right to advocate a third party in the future."

Organizing the farmers

Organizing the farmers
PALMYRA, ILL.
From a farmer's standpoint there isn't a nickel's worth of difference between the Democrats and the Republicans. Both parties permit the middle-men who first get their hands on the products of our farms to steal our crops and then fatten themselves by charging the consumer top prices. This condition needs a lot of attention by any new party seeking the cooperation of the farmer. At best farmers are difficult people to organize. Their thinking runs in all directions and it's hard to line them up on any single plan.

A plan proposed

A plan proposed

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Progressives must ever be in the vanguard but we cannot get so far in advance of the main army of people that they lose sight of the way we are going. An equally dangerous chance is that the reactionary enemies will succeed in cutting the progressive forces off from our base of supply—the people—if we are too far ahead.

The progressive forces should organize a bloc in the Democratic Party—a sort of quasi-independent group, much like the ADA—to present a platform and candidates. If the bloc presented a platform and candidates to the Democratic Party primaries, they stand a chance of being heard and even voted in. The issue of socialism, however desirable it may be to me and others, need not arise at this level except incidentally and educationally.

"Political isolation"

"Political isolation"

"Political Isolation

BRONX, N. Y.
Your call for "independent political action" is a call for political action" is a call for political isolation, which will lead to very independent political suicide. We're having enough difficulty discussing Formosa, German-re-armament, civil rights, etc. Let's try to decrease the confusion, hysteria, intimidation and fear around these issues before we go off into further political adventures. On this score, the GUARDIAN has done a magnificent job, and we hope, will continue to enlighten us all.

Mr. Californian

Disappointed Californian

Disappointed Californian
RIVERSIDE, CALIF,
Sorry, but my reaction to the decision of the IPP State Conference at Fresno is one of profound disappointment. It was not such a spirit of defeatism which put IPP on the ballot in 1948! Then we accomplished the impossible, in a political climate far less favorable than at present. I have a right to speak, as I personally approached hundreds, literally hundreds of people on the streets of San Francisco to fill petitions.

"Explore new forms of political activity?" There is only one form which can be of any effect, and that is to form the nucleus of a third-party movement. Our reason for being is to expose the phony mature of the boasted "two-party" system, to awaken the public to the fact that what we have 's in reality a one-party system, rapidly driving toward fascism.

Certainly we want a broad movement. But we shall not win them by retreating just when we should advance; not by relinquishing our toehold, folding up and thus add-ing one more obstacle in the path toehold, folding ..., ing one more obstacle in the pain of progress.

"Channeling the energies and devotion of its members more directly into the political life of their communities?" That means spending our energies in futile protests against effects instead of attacking the cause! If we are temporarily off the ballot, that is no reason why the party should dissolve. We should never dissolve until we merge into a larger, broader people's party, which is surely in the making even now.

History's lesson

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.

It seems to me that the lesson History teaches us is that it takes crusaders to launch a new idea, but the man of the hour in established and conventional places puts it over. FDR never belonged to a left-wing organization. The crusaders seldom get credit except in their own group after they are dead. That is just one of the facts of life we have to face.

Let's just stay in and slug; speak our sentiments and go to jail; stop mud and shot and glory in the struggle. Some day it will happen! We may be dead. We may have gone through a bloody war. Our cities and farms may have been destroyed. But some day the people will awaken—and we shall have helped!

MANITOWOC, WIS.

As I see it—and I'll admit that as of now our two parties are as alike as peas in a pod—we must curb our impatience and start right now at the grass roots and the sidewalk level to support and elect those whom we can trust. If we can adhere to such a policy long enough we can eventually hope to elect cur Federal Representatives up to the President from among those who have progressively and consistently fought for our policies. In other words we must "hitch our wagon" to the Democratic star. I do not mean the Democratic Party as such, but the party of, for and by the people, which obviously would not now be the GOP. I could call myself a left-handed Democrat.

No splinter 3d party

No splinter 3d party
OAKLAND, CALIF.

Talk of setting up a third party at this time without major participation by organized labor is folly. We are whistling in the dark. Since the last election we all have felt a natural letdown, and we are all asking, "Where do we go from here?" This is a proper question, but we must not rush off after the first dramatic proposal that seeks to answer it. Otherwise we will have learned nothing from the history of the Progressive Party and the recent history of the American Labor Party. This is not the time for a splinter third party. This is the time to intensify work within the Democratic Party looking forward to the development of a truly mass third party. The counsel of doom

The counsel of doom

The counsel of doom

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

The authoritative-sounding letter from "Name Withheld" (2/7) says:

"At the present, when we progressives must unite on the very elementary issues of civil liberties and peace, I consider it dangerous and destructive to call for socialism. We are engaged in a struggle for survival against the McCarthyltes and war-mongers. These are the issues, not socialism."

And so, "we" must not be "destructive," but must once again try to arouse in the hearts of the working people the vain hope of progress through the party of their masters. Such is the "dialectics" of training for independence by prolonging dependence, of expecting people to follow tomorrow out of the swamp those who today repeatedly push them back into the swamp—and gag them with mud in the process. Well, perhaps "we" may, by all such "tactics," survive. But this will not be survival of leaders of the working class. Nor will there be "survival," much less advance, for any progressive movement that listens further to such counsel.

Limited action

Limited action

WESTFIELD, MASS.

Our objective should not be to support the Demos (the party) nor to attempt to build a party withnout a mass labor base (which would be suicidal). We should take limited, realistic, independent action, putting up a national Presidential candidate in '56 mayhap, as a political barometer more than as the people's savior, voting for Morse-like Democrats but voting for an ALP or PP candidate when no such choice is presented.

In the present national atmosphere few people would listen to the call of a new Left party withnout labor's support and an economic change even if such a party had a loud enough voice to be heard, which it has not. The minions of Wall Street have monopolized the people's minds as well as their lives, their fiesh.

Three Young Working Men

Socialist-Progressive Party

Socialist-Progressive Party
MILL VALLEY, CALIF.
Socialism is the issue. We are fighting on behalf of the working people for socialism against capitatism in a world in which socialism is triumphing over the people's enemy centered in Wall Street. Explicit socialist propaganda, linked inseparably to every activity of the Left, is the only correct tactical line to prevent isolation and arouse and widen a real mass struggle.

First main task, in the specifically political field, is to organize a Socialist-Progressive Party, as a national center for political and cultural activity, with and without the ballot, with a non-pacifist peace drive at the top of the program. A Communist Party, reoriented or new, must enact a real vanguard role. In the political field its first concern must be to insure that the new party shall be a direct-membership party of people's democracy, and that no form of so-called "mainstream," so-called "training" for so-called "independent" political action—much less any hope of total reliance on an official labor or labor-farmer party—be allowed to substitute for and subvert the inevitable party of people's democracy. W. E. Sternwahb

Two big facts

Two big facts

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.

My own preference is for a socialist program, but this is not the big question now. Today a political vacuum exists in the U.S.—there is no proper force to express the widespread desire for peace. And the second big fact, there is no force which is independent of coalitionism with the two big parties.

Homework first

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
As a Californian who worked hard, As a Californian who worked hard, with many others, to get a third party on the ballot, I would urge patience in developing a third party at this time. It is easy to spin the top, but I feel there should be a firm, broad base before launching support for that particular venture at this time. We have to do our homework first.

J. McE.

Who isn't ready?

Who isn't ready?

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Let us examine this question of the peopie not being "ready." Who isn't ready, the progressives themselves, or rather a section of the progressives? But what about the workers, Negroes and farmers? Who is to answer for them? As for the union leaders—well, I hope we're not too naive on this question. Let us not permit any grass to grow under our feet, waiting for them to make a move. This gang of "new Tich" is not fooling the workers. Let's never underestimate the people, as anyone who lives close, or among them, never does.

Columbus and us

POCATELLO, IDAHO
When Columbus sailed due west in order to arrive east, he was scientifically correct; but I doubt that it is equally correct to advocate that we sail away from a people's party in order to obtain one, for I suspect this contemplates traveling not a circuitous route but a devious one, strewn with swamps of opportunism and hills of evasion. The "leader" who is afraid to step to the front and, moreover, indicates that he believes the common people fools or cowards, will of coures lead nothing nor deserve to.

From a leg-worker

BRONX, N. Y.

In my opinion, it is organized labor that should initiate a third party. When this does happen we, of course, must give it our utmost support. I have been doing leg work in the ALP for a good many years. Having this practical experience, I am certain that a "go-it-alone" third party will not get any support. Its only effect at this time could be to divide the progressive forces.

H. G.

Rallying point

Rallying point

LEVITTOWN, N. Y.

No forward-looking progressive wants the ALP to fold its tent and disappear. It must become a rallying point for active fighters for peace, civil rights, material and spiritual well-being, and a better way of life—socialism. After the first atomic explosion, it would be idle for survivors (if any) to argue that it couldn't happen under socialism. "Common sense"

As hardy as weeds

As hardy as weeds

SEBASTOFOL, CALIF.

Before the die-easys superimpose their despair on us die-hards we invite them to make a personal tour among the grass-roots progressives. They would be refreshed and surprised to find that these roots are like those of weeds, which if hacked, slashed, soaked in oil or in the latest lethal compound, continue to grow upward with great gusto. The officials of the IPP are suffering battle fatigue. A minority party is a hard times party. If we needed it in '48 when the going was easy we certainly need it ten times as much now. If our leaders were convinced of their reasons for wanting an Independent Progressive Party in the first place they still should have enough conviction to maintain it.

Parley Apr. 16 marks 10th year of FDR death

MARKING the tenth anniversary of Franklin D. Roosevelt's death, the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee has called a conference ap-pealing to Congress for a "rebirth of freedom."

Sen. Wm. Langer (R-N.D.)
will be the featured speaker at the all-day session in Carnegie Hall on April 16. Among the other speakers are: civil liber-ties attornies Royal W. France. Leonard B. Boudin and Frank Donner; Professors Thomas Emerson, H. H. Wilson, Broadus Mitchell and Dirk Bodde; dancer Paul Draper, Teachers Union legislative representa-tive Mrs. Rose Russell; jour-nalist I. F. Stone; authors Dan Gillmor and Harvey O'Connor, economist J. Raymond Walsh.

SOMETHING TO PROBE:

something to probe: In its call to the conference, ECLC sounded this keynote:
"We call upon the Judiciary Committee of the House and Senate to establish a joint committee to investigate abridgements of civil liberties throughout the land. We urge [it] to review all existing legislation that limits constitutional lation that limits constitutional freedoms of belief, expression and association. A pig's-eye view of the Hudson

Some years ago Robert R. Young, as head of the Chesapeake & Ohio R. R., devised this bill-board slogan: "A hog can cross the country without changing trains—but you can't." Now, as head of the N.Y. Central R.R., Young is seeking to abandon passenger service on the West Shore R.R. between Weehawken, N.J., and Albany, N.Y., but to allow freight to go through. So West Shore passengers got themselves up in pig masks and made up their own slogan: "A hog will be able to ride the West Shore—why can't we?" The battle is now before the N.J. Public Utility Commission.

The awful truth

TOPEKA, KANS.

TOPEKA. KANS.

If I were to depend on the radio and local papers for news. I would really be confused. Everybody is rushing to the microphone or press to assure us that Washington is far ahead in the production of nuclear weapons. Science has already worried us that the earth's atmosphere is really saturated to the danger point for all of civilization. Could it be that Washington is whistling in the dark, hoping to avoid the awful truth?

Pleasantville ADA holds peaceful meeting on human rights despite attacks by Legion

By Eugene Gordon

PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y. PLEASANTVILLE'S Americans for Democratic Action announced on March 21 that the following Friday night they'd show Edward R. Murrow's show Edward R. Murrow's filmed TV interview with atomic scientist J. Robert Opschemic scientist J. Robert Op-penheimer and play Reuben Ship's recording of "The In-vestigator" in the Junior High School hall. On the night of March 21, at a school board meeting, the American Legion Francher Nicoll Post's past commander, Tracey J. Powell, demanded withdrawal of the demanded withdrawal of the permit to use the school. Scars-dale's Un-American Activities Committee's John B. Coman and Otto Dohrenwend, sup-ported by members of West-chester County American Legion, backed him up.

If ADA showed the without saying Oppenheimer was a "security risk," and went through with a recording that "follows the Communist that "follows the Communist Party line in ridiculing Con-gressional investigations," the Legion would picket, Tracey said. All money from sales of the record, he said, went to "Communist causes."

NO CENSORSHIP: Supt. of Schools Harold Davey said that he and the board believed ADA members were fine citi-zens; that Pleasantville voters had authorized community organizations to use the schools and it wasn't the board's business to censor any program.

James B. White of Yonkers. the Legion's Westchester County committee chairman, wired State Commissioner of Education Lewi Thursday night Lewis A. Wilson night "to take ap-Wilson propriate action to prevent the Pleasantville school facilities from being used to dissemipropaganda furthering Communist aims.

The news broke into the nation's press and radio broad-casts. Reporters began con-verging on Pleasantville, School board president Joseph J. Corn

"One word of the truth and I'll have you jailed for

Jr. told 'the N.Y. Post that it simply wasn't "our business to censor what people propose to say at meetings." He said that say at meetings. He said that until people have been "con-victed of crime or branded subversive by the Attorney General's office we are not going to set ourselves up as little tin gods to say what people can or cannot say."

A PACKED HALL: Friday night at 8:15 p.m. the gym hall held only ADA chairman Judith Podel, some men puttering with a projector, and a few ill-at-ease persons. An elderly lady called newcomers' attention to ADA pamphlets and folders. Some titles: "Stop Sitting on the Fence—You Be-long in ADA"; "Free Speech vs. The Communists."

By 8:30 the gym was crowded. A man behind this re-porter said: "We weren't com-ing until we read the story; then we couldn't stay away." Most of the people were mid-dle-aged or elderly, but there were lots of young people too

Mrs. Podel told the assembly: "In this audience made up of adults you have a right to make up your own minds." She congratulated the school board

"for its fine stand in this hysterical age." Nobody, she said, seemed to know whether Ship was a Communist. If he is, she said, "we condemn his point of view" but do not hesitate to use his art. Nor did she believe that "Charlie Chaplin and others who have been boycotted should be.'

NO MORE PEEKSKILLS: Applause drowned the voice of an American Civil Liberties Union speaker when he re-ferred to the Peekskill riots as ferred to the Peekskill riots as "another Westchester County demonstration against constitutional rights." He said that even if the Peekskill victims "might be called extreme left-wingers, we'll be attacked, too, if we don't take action to stop it."

The Companyaging interview.

The Oppenheimer interview was warmly received. "The Investigator" brought down the house. If any opponent of the show was present he reof the snow was present he remained silent. There were no pickets outside.

Every New York paper except the Post ignored the meeting although their reporters were present. The expected unpleasantness did not come to Pleasantville, so there was no news.

the SPECTATOR-

The Mayor of Clifton

By Betty Millard

(The communities described here are among those serviced for the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers Union by Clinton Jencks. Jencks, who played a leading role in the historic Empire Zinc strike at Bayard, N. M., and re-enacted it in the film Sait of the Earth, has just been denied a new trial in El Paso despite the recantation of Harvey Matusow, chief witness for the state's charge that Jencks falsified a Taft-Hartley affidavit. The author is editor of Latin America Today.) Latin America Today.)

By day Clifton, Ariz. (pop. 3,000) is perhaps less romantic but it's still not like just any other town. It has its 5 & 10 and Esso station and beer parlors, but opposite the 5 & 10 is Local 616, Intl. Union of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers. And this weathered frame building is the most important one in town.

Clifton and Morenci are dominated by the Phelps-Dodge inated by the Phelps-Dodge open-face copper mine, its mill and smelter. Most of their in-habitants work for the company and belong to Mine-Mill, Local 616's headquarters consist of a meeting hall and a small office. The latter, crowded with a couple of desks, some chairs and a pot-bellied stove, serves also as a sort of unofficial City Hall; for Local 616's business agent, Henry Marquez, is also Clifton's mayor.

COMMUNISM & ALL THAT: Marquez, a Mexican-American who speaks with the slight, pleasant Spanish intonation so characteristic of the Southwest, has been mayor six years now, re-elected twice. He told me about his campaign for State Senator last November, which all Mine-Mill members think he won:

ator last November, which all Mine-Mill members think he won:

"At 3 a.m. I was about 500 votes ahead out of about 3.500 voters total. Then the counting stopped, and next morning it was announced that the most unpopular guy had won."

He was opposed not only by the company but by his priest, though he is a devout Catholic. The union provides its members with income tax service, and one year Marquez put up a sign reading: "All proceeds from income tax services donated to the Church." Nevertheless during the campaign the priest denounced the "communist agitators" involved in it meaning Marquez Soid "communist agitators" involved in it, meaning Marquez. Said

"Well, everyone knows Phelps-Dodge paid him to do it.
But I guess he's sorry now, because this is a Mine-Mill town and nobody goes to his church any more. And those that do go don't put anything in the plate. In fact, the communist issue doesn't work in this town. It just gets us more members."

COMPANY TOWN: Phelps-Dodge owns about half of Clifton but it owns all of Morenci, which doesn't even bother having a but it owns all of Morenci, which doesn't even bother having a mayor; the company manager runs everything, with a combination of paternalism and despotism. The schools are good, but only property-owners can vote for the school board and Phelps-Dodge is the only property-owner. It owns even the land underhouses built by the miners, and can give them any time a 30-day notice to vacate and take their houses with them. The 30-day notice is a powerful club, and also an effective deterrent to too much competition by the few independent retail stores it allows to exist alongside its own Phelps-Dodge Mercantile Co. store.

If a Mine-Mill member gets in trouble with "the law" it's strictly company law; he's arrested by a company denuty, tried tria Mine-Min member gets in trouble with "the law" it's strictly company law: he's arrested by a company deputy, tried by a company justice of the peace and then, if found guilty, fired—by the company. Yet Mine-Mill dominates the town's normal life just as in Clifton. The commander of the Morenci American Legion is Local 616's former grievance chairman.

"SINCE THE UNION CAME": Dave Velasquez, Local 616 president, showed me around Morenci when he came off the grave-yard shift at 8 a.m. We admired the mine's spectacular terraces yard shift at 6 a.m. We admitted the infile's spectacinal terraces—silvery, green, coppery—with the ore trains running along them. Then we drove out over stern hills typical of this Southwest country where generations of miners have struggled for survival and left a heritage of bitter humor in the names they bequeathed their inhospitable land—Buzzard Roost Canyon, Cold Creek, and left a heritage of bitter humor in the names they bequeathed their inhospitable land—Buzzard Roost Canyon, Cold Creek, Rattlesnake Mountain. At a bare little miners' cemetery straggling down the hill from the road, Velasquez stopped and said:

"That's where my father is buried. He died young of silicosis. He never had anything but poverty and struggle. I wish he could see what we have now, since the union came..."

"It's not that we've got everything, by a long shot. We still have to fight a lot of discrimination in these towns, where there's company housing, for instance. But now we are human beings. My father had a burro; all the miners have cars now. Of course, there aren't any of us have paid for them..."

Mexican-American miners who made $3 a day before the war are now making from $12 to $18 a day. And the union has ended the dual wage scale, under which Mexican-American miners got less for the same job than Anglos. Whatever attacks are
