POUGHKEEPSIE. N. Y., Oet, 2.—
There is consternation among the members of the "exclusive" Clove Variley Field and Gun Club, the membership of which is made up largely of New York millionaires, for fear they will be prosecuted for shooting live ducks from traps in violation of a State law which lists the practice as cruel and inhuman.

Nearly half a bundred members and guests met at the clubbouse at Clove Valley, Dutchess County, Saturday to hold a meet, but an ageat of the Society for the Prevention of Gruelty to Animals who had spent a week there made his identity known and warned the members not to shoot one duck.

Among the New York members are William P. Clyde, Jr.: George D. Warren, Edmund C. Converse, Jr. S. S. Converse, Arnup D. alay, O. C. Grinnell, Jr. The Rev. Alex C. Cummins, rector of the fashionable Christ Church, Episcopal, of this city, is an enthusiastic member of the club and one of its crack shots.

George Wiltse Shuts Out the Pittsburgers, 3 to 0, and Allows Them Only One Hit.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 2 .- On their way East after a triumphant tour the sion to the State of California to Giants paid a visit to the Pirates today and inflicted a shutout on the Clarke cohorts. The pennant came that much nearer for the Giants. They have only two games to win now to make it sure, and less than that if the Cubs drop a game. Today's shutout was the second in two successive days dispensed by the Giants, and in whitewashing the Pirates, George Wiltse was the major performer.

Wiltse held the Pittsburg batters to as Miller, pinch hitter, after two men had been retired in the ninth inning. Only twenty-nine men faced Wiltse. Nobody reached second base, and only six reached first base. One of the six to reach first base really did not quite get there, he forced a man in the ninth inning and arrived at first only technically. The other wanderers who managed to penetrate into that almost forbidden land were carey, Miller, McKechnle, Gibson and Leach. Leach walked and was wiped beach. Leach warked and was when out in a double play. Carey was safe on an error by Herzog and was out stealing. An error and a force accounted for McKechnie and Gibson seeing first base. The single Pirate to be left on base was Byrne, who forced Willer in the inth. Miller in the ninth.

It was a cold and torpid lot of ath-letes who went into action, but, hav-ing the pennant incentive, the Giants more nimbly in the raw. Principal Local Clubs Arrange Good Fights-Sam Langford to Meet Tony Caponi Friday Night.

By JOHN J. HAAS,

Sam Langford will be seen here again Friday night, when he meets Tony Caponi at the Twentieth Century A. C., in a bout which is schedulca to go ten rounds. Caponi recent ly fought twelve rounds with Langford in Winnipeg, Manitoba, and is confident he can defeat the "Tar Baby," if the latter is compelled to fight strictly within the rules. He complains that Sam hit low on several occasions in his last bout, though they match while it lasts, but it's hard! possible that Langford will show his opponent any mercy this time, let him stay the limit. This bout mark the closing exercises of the Twentieth Century at the St. Nicholas

Those who are familiar with the county politics have been wondering today whether there is any significant connection between this action and the fact that many of the employes of the Bayless company, which owned the dam, occupy positions upon the Town School Board, the Police Board, and one or two other bodies of municipal standing. Many of the more well-to-do men of Austin are stockholders in the company.

so at once,

A campaign leaflet, written by Chairman, Kings County General Com Joshua Wanhope, will be ready by the end of this week. This leaflet deals Campaign Contributions. with this year's election, and is aimed to dispel the idea of the off year. It shows the importance of this election and the necessity of the workers electing Socialists to office, and it points out what the Legislature can do, and would be compelled to do, if only one Socialist were in that body. This leaful to the socialist were in that body. This leaful to the socialist were in that body. This leaful to the socialist were in that body the socialist were in the social were social were

A leastet, intended for agitation A leastet, intended for agitation of the press in a day. This leastet is written by Joseph Cohen, of Philadelphia. The title is "Do You Want to Be a Boy Scout?" It is appropriately little and the proposed by Comrade John Sloan, H. C. and will do the work it is intended to H. J. and will do the work it is intended to do, namely, to wake up the young men. This leadet was printed by Local New York for the Young Socialist Federation, and it is hoped that boys and girls of that organization will do all they can to give it the circulation it merits.

. Ratification Meeting.

The ratification meeting of Local New York will be held on Saturday, October 14, at Cooper Union. As the National Executive Committee meets at that time in Bridgeport it is in-tended to get several members of the N. E. C. to speak at that meeting, as well as some of the candidates for of-fice nominated by the Socialist party. Printed matter to advertise this meet-ing will be ready in a few days, and, the Comrades are urged to agitate for

The Debs Meeting.

The tickets for this meeting are selling well, and the demand for reserved seats is great. Every mail brings a large number of orders for seats and boyes. Those who want reserved seats Those who want reserved seats will do well to get them immediately, much longer.

As we have about three weeks to the meeting, the Comrades are hereby reminded to do all in their power to make this meeting an unprecedented success. Push the sale of tickets as much as you can. Especially should the tickets be sold at the street meetings. In a few places where the Comrades do this the sale of the tickets is very large. At one meeting in Wall street fifty tickets were sold, and the Com-rades of Branch 5 report large sales at 125th street and Seventh avenue, and the same can be done at all meetinge if the Comrades will only try.

A PYRRHIC VICTORY?

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 3.

We notice a statement to the effect that the decision of Judge Grosscup to resign from the judiciary was largely brought about by the activity of Socialists who have been attacking his actions and exposing his career. This pleasant information is, however, slightly marred by the announcement that the judge is likely to be a candidate for the United States Senate to replace Senator Cullom of Illinois, whose term is drawing to a close.

It is quite likely, too, that he will be a successful candidate. If reports are to be believed, he is fully qualified as regards the posses sion of property to become a member of the "millionaires' club" at Washington, having worked for millionaires during his entire

Should Grosscup become a Senator there will be small satisfaction for the Socialists in contemplating the result of their activity—if it really is such—in forcing him to resign from the judiciary. That he will have less power as a Senator than as a judge, in working for capitalist interests, is doubtful, and it is fairly sure that his suc cessor on the bench will be about the same kind of judge that he was.

To put Grosscup down and out for good, the recall is the first easure necessary. If he had been called down by a majority vote of the people his chance of becoming a Senator would be, to say the least, much less than it now is. This measure is, of course, not yet enacted into law, but it is one of the first and most important measures that should be enacted to get the lawmaking power into the control of the people.

There is little use in forcing a man like Grosscup out of office while we leave it in the power of the capitalists to provide him with another position where he can be, on the whole, quite as mischievous d as useful to them

And we may be tolerably certain that such provision will always be made for a man who has opposed Socialism as Grosscup has. From the capitalist point of view, the finest testimonial he could sibly have would be that he was forced out of office by the

It may be, of course, that the recall could not absolutely prevent the exploiting classes from making some sort of provision for such tools of theirs as might be deposed by the workers, but in such positions as could be found it is altogether likely that their power for mischief would be considerably minimized.

The process of eliminating judges notoriously inimical to the orking class and as notoriously the tools of capitalism in all probability would require the enactment of further measures beyond the recall to make the elimination permanent, but that this is the initial step in the process is obvious enough.

is equally obvious that until we can complete the process the claim of victory on our part will always be more or less question-able. We will have to "take care" of our Grosscups completely or resign ourselves to seeing our masters take care of them, after we have gone to the limit of our power in dealing with them.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED

Right now, before the insensate hatred of "capital" makes itself heard, we rise up to emphatically remark that the recent deplorable occurrence at Austin, Pa., where some hundreds of people lost their lives, was clearly "the act of God."

Such occurrences always are. Railroad collisions and factory fires may at times to some extent, perhaps, be attributable to the neglect of man, but destruction by water is always "the act of God."

This is no original opinion of our own. We got it straight from an eminent judge some twenty-five years ago; the jury agreed with him and it was so ordered. This happened in China, but the judge was a learned and intelligent British jurist, than whom there is none better qualified to place esponsibility where it belongs. The occasion was an inquiry into why it was that a coasting steamship that had left Singapore with some thousand Chinese

There might have been more than that number saved, only it so happened that the rice and cooking apparatus for these deck passengers, installed on top of the main hatch, were swept overboard in the oon also, consequently a few score survivors of the typhoon died partly of starvation and partly from exposure and injuries before the reaching port.

The learned judge in summing up said that the whole thousand would undoubtedly have arrived safely enough were it not for the typhoon, that the latter was a natural occurrence for which the ship typhoon, that is no way responsible, and was clearly an act of God.

The passengers before embarking thoroughly understood, or should have understood, that there was no space below for them, that the vessel was filled to the hatch coamings with cargo, and that their contract with the company plainly called for a deck passage. The company lived strictly up to the letter of the contract, and if the pasagers didn't, that might be their misfortune, but it was not the company's fault. It was no act of theirs that the typhoon came along. 'the act of God" instead

Thus the matter was settled to the satisfaction of all concerned with the possible exception of the Chinese, who didn't count any-how, as they didn't know anything of this God and were not capable of judging about his acts.

We don't see why this should not be good law if the paper mill company at Austin is charged with responsibility for the breaking of steamship that had left Singapore with some thousand Chinese passengers came into Hongkong with something less than forty. It was a British vessel, and the owners were highly respectable, pious and God-fearing persons.

The evidence didn't amount to very much. It merely brought out the following inconsequential facts:

That the vessel was very small—not over 1,200 tons, was deeply loaded, and had no accommodation below for passengers. That the thousand Chinese had to stay on deck all the way—only they didn't.

And the reason they didn't was that a typhoon came along in the middle of the China Sea and washed them off—all but forty or so.

We make the above suggestion for the reason that it is becoming altogether too common to blame capitalists for everything of the kind that happens and ignore "the man higher up." Of course, most intelligent people, like, say, Coal Baron George F. TAFT DEPRESSES US-WE SUPPRESS HIM

We are not sure whether a confession will interest our readers, but we desire to make one, and this is it. We have just deliberately suppressed an editorial written by ourselves for these columns.

And the explanation thereof is that the subject was Mr. Taft and his recent speech at Waterloo, Iowa. We have about reached the conclusion that hereafter Mr. Taft should be allowed to pass almost unnoticed in these columns. We are not so vain as to suppose that he will care much, but we think our readers will not care much either, and we propose to consider them before Mr. Taft. It has been our fixed opinion that editorial work to be effective should be stimulating, suggestive, terse, aggressive and pointed, and as far as possible, we have striven to attain this ideal, though of course we have fallen far short of it.

But to even attempt this, the writer must have a stimulating theme or personality as a subject.

And it is exceedingly difficult to find that qualification in such a dull, mediocre political figure as Mr. Taft. With his picturesque predecessor it was very different. Theodore was an active, spirited and savage bull in the political ring, and always afforded lively exercise for the Socialist matador, as well as amusement for the tors, but there is no more interest in dealing with Taft in this fashion than there is in goading a fat, old dehorned ox.

When we had finished the suppressed editorial, on looking it over, we found that it was mainly a repetition of what we had written many times before, and soon discovered that this in turn was due to the fact that Mr. Taft had merely repeated what he had said many times before

But we hung on to our screed until editorial comment on the speech appeared in the capitalist press, and when it hailed Taft as a hero and the savior of the country and declared his speech had insured the return of prosperity, we promptly consigned our editorial to the waste paper basket. What's the use?

When such a dull, slow-witted creature is lauded as a hero and savior, the Socialist writer who troubles himself or his readers with questioning it is perhaps more futile and ridiculous than the object he deals with.

So we feel rather inclined to passively accept Taft as a hero and let it go at that. One consolation remains with us, however.

These heroes are providentially soon forgotten.

Here, for instance, is Roosevelt. Less than two years ago be was the hero and savior nationally acclaimed. He was the "Man on Horseback" who was to suppress social revolution throughout the world, after he got through the slight preliminary task of suppress ing the trusts. He was the universal reformer, the exponent of "Americanism," the authority on social science, politics, economics, finance, Cromwell colonization, theology, Celtic literature, militar-ism, ethics, naval tactics, morals, Socialism, natural history, boxing and eugenics. He was the Colossus of America, the Mighty Hunter of Africa, the Admirable Crichton of Europe, the Strong Man who brought East and West face to face, the Hero of Two Worlds. He was Everything.

And today he is Nothing! A forgotten hero. A spent politician for whom his masters, the capitalists, have no further use. A politician without even a "personal following"; in that respect on an immeasurably lower political plane than, say, "Big Tim" Sullivan.

But yesterday he stood against the world, and the world listened when he hollered out, "Gee!" Now none so interested as to pay the slightest attention, let him yell never so lustily.

For another occupies his pedestal, the dull, phlegmatic Taft. He is a hero, too. Nay, more; he is T H E hero.

A pollescopher once defined the hero as the man who does things.

A philosopher once defined the hero as the man who does things. The definition is fitting and adequate. The political hero is also the man who does things—for the capitalist.

The politician who has done things for the capitalists and can-do them any longer, isn't a hero, but a has-been.

While doing things heroes are magnified a million diameters so, and naturally Taft, the present hero and savior, looms up abnormally large. When they have got through doing things, their existence can barely be detected with a high-powered political microscope.

Taft will soon be through, and another hero and savior will take his place. When he comes down with something more than the usual "dull, sickening thud" we may perhaps devote some editorial space to the descent.

In what are called the highest society circles it is a common ing that no master is a hero to his valet.

And in the highest political circles no valet is a hero to his masters-after he has been discharged from their service.

So while Taft remains a hero to his masters, he is very unsatisfactory editorial material for these columns. One can get some enjoyment out of a punching bag: it rebounds. But slugging at a feather bed is a weariness both to the flesh and the spirit.
