Socialist and Bryanite Lock

Significant Sight.

WALLINGFORD, CONN., Feb. 12.-On December 11, 1893, when Arthur Keep. New York, spoke in T. A. B. Hall, he challenged to debate by the editor of the Wallingford News, Richards by name. This Richards is a luminary of the Bryan free silver, anti-trust Democracy in Connecticut, and during the last week or two has been traveling around the state with

Yesterday the debate took place before an audience that filled T. A. B. Hall, and the Bryanite was put to utter rout. complete was the rout that nothing else is now spoken of in this manufacturing

The meeting was called to order by Ernest Oatley, of New Haven, who announced the subject of debate to be "Demorracy or Socialism, Which?" giving the time allotted to each as follows: Richards to open with twenty minutes, Keep te follow with twenty minutes; then Richards to answer with forty-five minutes. Keep to close with twenty minutes. minations for chairman being asked for, Col. Michael O'Callahan was 'chosen by a unanimous vote.

Richards, on being introduced as the opener, was received with great applause. He got off the usual Bryanite speech, "volume of business," "masses against classes." "lack of opportunities," "per capita," etc., etc., concluding with an appeal for unity on the part of the down trodden, under the leadership of that "peerless champion of liberty, and statesman, William J. Bryan," who was going to lead the hosts of the oppressed out of the slough of despond up to the heights of liberty," etc., etc.

keep was then introduced, the applause he was greeted with was slight. He said in part that, as a Socialist, he was in favor of unity, but it must be unity that made for the betterment of the conditions of the working class and that was the unification of the working class against their outpressors. "How," said he, "do we of the working class try to better our condition? By, in the past, going on strike for better pay and shorter hours; when we strike, we strike against those who want the working class try to better our condition? By, in the past, going on strike for better pay and shorter hours; when we strike, we strike against those who was the working class to work long hours for short pay. Who are those who get rich off our misery? Those who own the factories mines, silver as well as gold, railroads, wprkshops, etc. We do not strike against workingmen, and always do we strive to bring in a dumb way though it be, into being more liberty. What happens when we go on strike? We are met with the policeman's club, the militia, injunctions and the regular army. Who uses those against us? The boss, the employer, the capitalist, everytime.

"In Idaho, last year, said Keep, "mines were striving to attain their liberty, or a small amount thereof. They organized and made demands. What happened?

The Standard Oil—ast, against whom Mr. Richard has railed as enemy of liberty, owned the mines, and to prevent the miners wirming their battle for liberty, proceeded to create trouble by blowing up with dynamite one of their old mills. Did the free silver Bryanite governor of that state proceed against the Standard Oil people? Did he arrest them and punish then? Not on your life. He immediately proclaimed martial law, and, in violation of the law and the constitution, arrested the miners and other workingmen and the form of the law and the constitution, arrested the miners and other working class.

"Again," Keep went on. "in Colorado, where the miners in the silver mines, wand the so-called free miner has, after law of the str touched every part except California, and has told you of troubles in Idaho and Colorado, places where mobs violated the law, and they had to be attended to, just as some of you people need attending to in it allingford." Seemingly unconscious of this break, which, however, did not excape the large workingmen's audience present, Richards went on speaking against the charges brought against the Bryanites by Acep. He used up his time in again lauding Bryan and telling stories the point of which was not in evidence. In his manner, by his words, he gave us to understand that, while he was out for liberty (?), it was liberty for himself as an employer, and not for the workers. It is peroration met with only the applause of the few Democratic heelers present. All the workers seemed to be stumed at the cynical, brutal way in which he referred to the outrages committed upon labor in free silver Bryan states.

Socialism Clinches.

When Keep was introduced to close the debate, it was sometime before he could proceed, owing to the applause. It was plainly evident that the workers were woke up, saw through the sham of Bryanism, and were willing to stand forth for their own class.

Keep started by saying that Richards had shown the cloven hoof pretty plainly. "It is 'mobs' that viciate the law and needed 'attending to?"

In a bitter and sarcastic manner he referred to the fact that when workingmentried to get liberty they were always the "mob." Always are we of the working class shot, maimed and killed. Never yet has there been a mob of millionaires; never yet have the women and children of the capitalists been shot by militia, insulted by Pinkertons, harried by thugs, and killed by the regular army. Oh, no! it is only the working class that need attending to!"

When the applause that here broke in

When the applause that here broke in subsided, Keep continued showing how the Standard Oil Company could blow up buildings, nuarder men, women and children; and then call upon Bryan and Bryanism to imprison those of the "mob" who would not submit: and now came this friend of Bryan's and used the identical language regarding the working class as is used by the gold Republican Hanna, whom he, Bryan, is supposed to be at war with.

is used by the gold Republican Hanna, whom he, Bryan, is supposed to be at war with.

"The trail of the Republican and Democratic parties." Keep said, "is a trail of blood, and that blood is that of the men, women and children of the working class. Democrat and Republican are the same. All they want is the hide of the workers. They might fight over a division of that hide, but when the hide itself is at stake, Democrat and Republican become one. Rever and McKinley are in this Siamese town. (Loud applause.)

"Bryanism is a fraud. For instance, Richard Croker, of New York, the head of as dirty a gang of gamblers, thugs, keepeers of houses of ill fame and crooks as ever existed, says, 'Bryan is the greatest man in the Democratic party.' Who is Croker? He is the mannikin of William C. Whitney, And who is Whitney? He is chief megul in the Street Railway Trust of the United States and Canada. When Whitney pulled the string and Dick jumped to Bryan." Prolonged applause.)

Keep concluded with an appeal to the

If anyone wants to know how the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance is progressing, and whether it is hewing close to the line, all he has to do is to watch the fakirs. Only a short time ago, these gentlemen gave valuable testimony on the the Central Fakirated Union of this city. One of them rose and theatrically declared: "The Alliance is dead, dead, dead!" No sooner had he uttered the word, when another fakir, into his union the Alliance is making hard inroads, jumped up as "No," yelled he, "it is not if stung. "No," yelled he, "it is not dead; don't leap to such a false conclu sion. It is not dead yet, but it will die!" And in chorus a lot of other fakirs-label committee frauds, walking delegate duessqueezers, rank and file brow-beaters, and sellers out of the rank and file all of whom in a score of ways are experiencing the "union wrecking" effects of the Alliance, repeated with him: .o, it is not dead yet, but we will kill

The proposed municipalization of city franchises, under middle class management, and on the middle class plan, might be highly profitance to the middle class and its political agents, but could be of no benefit whatever to the wageworking people. It might even be highly profitable to the corporations, whose plants would no doubt be bought at corruption prices, including all the water in their stocks.—See advertisement on page 4 on "Middle Class Municipalization and the licual Program of the Socialist Labor Party."

The Municipal Campaign in Hasten to the Rescue of the Seattle Doing Its Work.

Socialism and the Socialist Labor Party Have Become the Subject of Discussions, Editorials and Retorts, while Owls, Freaks and Fakirs Look Startled-A Capitalist Editor Bowled into the Nine-Pin Basket.

SEATTLE, WASH., Feb. 11.-The munic ipal convention of the Socialist Labor Party in this city, the platform it issued, and the full ticket which it set in the field, thus clinching the point and proving itself to be "against the field," has set the owls fluttering. Freaks have since been scratching themselves; fakirs have inreased their potations of whiskey; poliicians are rubbing their eyes, and the penny-a-lining capitalist editors have been hunting up in their dust covered encyclopedias for definitions of Socialism and 'points" against it. But the party is bowling down the nine-pins of objections, and the campaign is progressing merrily.

by the Post-Intelligencer of this place. It come out with an article against Socialism ism that smelled strongly of mildew. Of course it knew no better. Old paste-beard objections and old style ignorance peeped out of every corner. The paper was speedily grappled with. Comrade W. S. Dalton took it in hand, and did it up brown in the below letter which he sent to the paper, and which, to the paper's redit, was promptly published.

To the Editor of the Post-Intelligencer:

One of these incidents was furnished

"The editorial on the Socialist Labor Platform in yesterday's Post-Intelligencer contains some statements which are un-just to the Socialist Labor Party and atjust to the Socialist Labor Party and attribute to the Democratic party more virtues than it possesses. You state that the platform adopted by the Socialist Labor Party in Seattle is 'European in construction and sentiment 'and 'without the slightest application to any condition which exists in this country,-two classes with opposing interests, viz., the capitalist class, owning the machinery of preduction, railroads, factories, mills, mines, etc., and a working class owning nothing Richard Croker, of New York, the head of as dirty a gang of gamblers, thugs, keepers of houses of ill fame and crooks as ever existed, says, 'Bryan is the greatest man in the Democratic party.' Who is Croker? He is the mannikin of William C. Whitney. And who is Whitney? He is chief mogul in the Street Railway. Trust of the United States and Canada. When Whitney pulled the string and Dick jumped to Bryan." Prolonged applause.)

When Whitney pulled the string and Dick jumped to Bryan." Prolonged applause. The Socialism Labor Party, saying that that Party slewe represented the workers present to unite against all the enemies of the worker under the banner of the Socialist Labor Party, saying that that Party slewe represented the workers because it alone stood for the only thing of benefit to the workers; to wit, the overthrow of wage slavery and capitalism by the collective ownership of the means of production and distribution.

As Keep stepped back, the loud and continued applause that followed showed that Socialism had come out on top.

Socialism had come out on top.

Socialism had come out on top.

Socialism what the moet. When the vote for Socialism was taken, the vote was practically a unanimous one, and threatened to take off the roof.

Richards, politician-like, then "moved to make the vote unanimous" in favor of Keep, evidently willing to go anywheir the mojority for the time being stood; but the chairman would not allow it, saying wittily: "No, sir; the vote itself has made it unanimous."

Thus was ended another skirmish between capitalism and socialism, and capitalism has received an injury in this town from which it will never recover, Nothing else is spoken of to-day but the overwhelming victory of the Socialist.

of the capitalist army, the Republican party.

"To say as you do that 'every man who has acquired a home or a lot on which to build a home " is a capitalist' savors very strongly of the infant economics of Henry George or 'Gene Way. Capital is wealth produced by human labor, used in producing more wealth, privately owned and able to compete. A capitalist is une who owns capital. I do not care to discuss the possibility of wage workers becoming independent, as that would take teo much of your valuable space. If you will kindly allow me at some future time I would be glad to do so, wirtten, voted on section by section, and adopted by American citizens and electors; we mean to enforce every provision adopted by American Citizens and elec-tors; we mean to enforce every provision of it if successful. We are not dividers of property, foreigners nor freaks. As the party of the working class we oppose the Democratic, Republican, Populist, Citi-zen, any and every party, but the Social-ist Labor Party. Yours for a fair fight, "U. S. DALTON."

"U. S. DALTON,"
The campaign is spreading education in all directions. It is educating our own class to its duties and rights, and it is educating the enemy as to what we are, want, and mean to do.

The Socialist Labor Party in Duluth, Minn., is now an officially recognized Party in the city, having polled the reqisite one per cent.

Class interests and class politics are inseparable. True, the interests of individual capitalists are necessarily various and conflicting. Two gold bugs, for instance, may differ on the tariff. The same business man who professes allegiance to a certain party on national issues may quite consistently vote for the other party on municipal questions. All capitalists, however, are united—and so, therefore, are their parties—on the fundamental principle of all capitalistic policy, that "labor must be fleeced," for if there were no fleece, there could be no contest as to its division between the fleecers.—See advertisement on page 4 on sliddle Class Municipalisation and the Municipal rrogram of the Socialist Laber Party"

Details of the Recent Cigarmakers' Strike-Its Source, Immediate Cause and Its Collapse-Brazen Betrayal of the Workers by Their Placemen-The Alliance Casting its Shadows

BOSTON, MASS., Feb. 11 .- I have been very deeply interested in "Truthful's" recent articles in THE PEOPLE, but am obliged to find fault with him for I know that he does not go far enough into the matter. That he should write of Boston is proper, for in an effort to show the rottenness of the pure and simple trade union and the corruption that lurks behind the label, Boston is one of the best examples. Here we have the strongest union of cigarmakers in America; in fact; this is the banner city for cigarmakers, also for pure and simple trades unions generally. In this town we have just had a strike, that is, a cigarmakers' strike, I now propose to give the entire story for the benefit, of my fellow members in the C. M. I. U., of America.

This strike has been in the air for the past two years. Nobody knew when it was going to come ; everybody expected it. so it was no surprise. But it is only the latest act in a drama of many acts.

Act I.

Since the strike of 1888, there was no unity among the manufacturers, until three years ago, when, after the men had secured an advance from $14 per thousand to $15, the Manufacturers, Associa-secured an advance from $14 per thousand to $15, the Manufacturers, Association re-formed, and every manufacturer in Boston joined. Thereon a line of action was decided on. They knew that the men were restless: that their petty exactions were becoming irksome, and that sooner or later the outburst would come, so it was determined that in case of trouble in any shop all the others were to assist. No soomer had that plan of action been decided on than an agitation arose in the uniqs to also the labels on all manufacturers who sell non-union cigars. For years Wait & Bond had been selling Werthings & Bessers as called seah sigars as their own product. Here you have a net uncommon pure and simple trade union fraud. (While the Cigarmakers' International Union was shoycotting Werthings & Shafer's cigars in New York, the Cigarmakers' International Union, through its label committee, was finding a market for the same goods as a union product in Boston, solely because Wait & Bond, had sold them.) This kept out of work lots of mold workers. These mold workers were a standing menace to the other men, so it was decided at a special meeting of the union, by a big majority, to withdraw the label. What did the manufacturers do? Fight? Oh, no; they knew better than that; they knew who their faithful servants were. So they waited, and sure enough the Tracys, McCarthys and others called a snap meeting of Union 97, and, without letting the others know, rescinded the resolution adopted at the other meeting, thereby earning the everlasting gratitude of the bosses. So much for Act I of the drama. The curtain now rises on itude of the bosses. So much for Act I of the drama. The curtain now rises on to do so, but demanded an increase of $1 a thousand,—which was granted. This is where the plan of the manufacturers was working as they wanted it to work. The firm granted the demands of the men, not that they felt well disposed towards the men, but in order to force what they knew would come sooner or later, and then, if it worked successfully, they would have accomplished two things:

First, the breaking of the spirit of the men:

men ; Second, marking those men most active

men;
Secend, marking those men most active in securing better conditions for the men, and forcing these men out of Boston; in other words getting rid of what the bosses considered a "turbulent element."

How well and in what manner they succeeded, will now appear. When the men in the first sloop gained their dollar increase, the men in another shop, to whom the same scrap order was given, made the same demand: the firm promised them an answer the next morning. This satisfied the men, and they continued working that day. During the night a special meeting of the cigar manufacturers was held, and it was decided to lock out all the men. When the men came to work the next morning, they found all the shops closed, and that they were locked out.

A meeting of the union was called; every one of the union leaders used his efforts in behalf of the manufacturers, ordering the men to return to work on the bosses' conditions. The men refused to do so. Thereupon these leaders telegraphed to Ferkins, the International president, who ordered the notorious Strasser and Woods to Boston.

Now watch. When these worthies arrived, they went straight to the manufacturer straight to the manufacturer straight to the manufacturer arrived, they went straight to the manufacturer.

was also published in all the Boston papers:

"This was the outcome of a conference held yesterday by representatives of the International Union (that is, Woods, Strasser and Tracy) and the cigar manufacturers. It was agreed that the strike was unprovoked."

Thus the officers of the union declared "unprovoked" a strike against an order (the order relating to a "clean table") which was an indirect cut of $2 a thousand, and a gain to the bosses of $3 a thousand, while the men only asked $1 to be recopped out of the $5 that the manufacturers earned by the enforcement of their order. In the teeth of all this, Woods, Strasser and Tracy said that the bosses were right in locking out their cigarmakers, as the strike was unprovoked!

cigarmakers, as the strike was unprovoked!

In order to give Strasser and Woods some return for their efforts in behalf of the bosses, these decided to give them a certificate of character to other manufacturers, so a representative of the bosses gave them references in these words:

"Mr. Strasser and Mr. Woods, who are here, representing the International Union, are both men of action. The turbulent element that has caused the present difficulty will soon be whipped into line. A plan is now being matured that will, I guarantee, prove a lesson to those who wish to disrupt the C. M. I. U., of A."

What does that mean? Remember this is a statement made by a manufacturer, a member of the bosses' association, who says further:

"A bomb will be discharged into the ranks of the strikers in a day or two; it is possible to fine each member $100 and suspend him from the union, and if an attempt is made to form an independent union of cigarmakers, it will fail, because the A. F. of L. will not recognize it. Thus thoroughly posted, the bosses waited for the end of the strike, which did end just as they expected.

From whom did the manufacturers reas they expected.

From whom did the manufacturers re-

From whom did the manufacturers re-ceive their information? Who posted them so well? The men who conferred with them? To whom they gave a cer-tificate of good character? And what does that certificate mean? Just this: "Fellow cigarmanufacturers if you have traphle with your men and you want aid does that certificate mean? Just this:

"Fellow cigarmanufacturers, if you hare trouble with your men and you want aid in exploiting them, engage Strasser and Woods; they have done good work for us, therefore we the cigar manufacturers of Bosten heartily recommend them to all our brother manufacturers in the United States. Long live the union!"

But to cap the climax, Sam Silver, a manufacturer, member of the bosses association, says:

"The whole present trouble was caused by about fifty Socialists among the cigarmakers; the manufacturers have learned who they are, and the manufacturers are determined to get rid of these men for good and all. Strasser and Wood were sent here to investigate; new Strasser and Wood are sick of them, and are with the manufacturers, and will assist in driving these fifty men out of town. They (Strasser and Wood) say that they will put the men all back into the shops if they have to lead them by the nose, and that they will take those fifty men out of town. This is what Mr. Silver, as member of

This is what Mr. Silver, as member of the M. C. A., a manufacturer says that will be done-by Strasser and Woods. Who told him? Where did he get his information from? As a matter of fact, the manufacturers have been supplied with a list of men who are to be "driven out of Boston," and this list was given them by a "union" man, and that they will try to use it there is no doubt. This is how the moral, material and intellectual welfare of the cigarmakers is being advanced by moral, material and intellectual welfare of the cigarmakers is being advanced by the union. The curtain now drops on the second act. What will the next act be? There is no telling, but it may consist on the birth of a Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance, that will show labor fakirs Strasser, Wood and Tracy that their days are gone, and will teach the manufacturers that heaceforth they will have to deal with men, not with the dupes of labor swindlers.

BLACKSTONE.

After the matter was disposed of, the manufacturers knew that they could depend on their servant, so they determined in case of trouble, to first act as a unit against the men and then to depend on their agents, the fakirs, to do the rest. Thus, when the last straw which broke the camel's back was put on in the shape of the "clean table" order, the plan was shaping itself.

Breslin and Campbell ordered their men to work all their scraps. The men agreed to do so, but demanded an increase of $1 a thousand,—which was granted. This many strikes the workers may lose, and however low their wages may sink, he never loses anything, his salary continuing to rise majestically, and his traveling expenses continue to furnish him with majestically increasing sources of added inome.

> A milk inspector in this city receives a alary of $25 from the city government to inspect milk; and from the dealers in milk he receives $50 not to inspect it.

The man's salary is, accordingly $75 a week, and he considers the Socialist scheme" about as perverse and silly an affair as can well be "concocted.

It is "silly" because it proceeds from the theory that such a thing is possible as destroying that "common sense" that will cause a man to prefer $75 a week to

It is "perverse" in that, if the "scheme

be possible, it would disturb the patriotic. individuality-loving, Anglo-Saxon, American institutions, that enable a man to avail himself of "common sense," thus destroying all incentive to labor.

In the economic organization of labor known as trade unionism, the Socialists see not only a logical development of the class struggle (and a sufficient proof in itself of the existence of that struggle, which is sometimes foolishly or knavishly denied), but also and above all a first mannestation of that class spirit, class consciousness, class solidarity, which the wage working people must fully acquire before they can achieve their complete emancipation.—See advertisement on page 4 on "Attitude of the Socialist Labor Party towards Trades Unions." In the economic organization of labor Strasser and Woods to Boston.

Now watch. When these worthies arrived, they went straight to the manufacturers, holding a long conference with them, the result of which was the manufacturers issued the following statement:

"The striking cigarmakers of Boaten will henceforth be wholly ignored both by the officials of the union and the cigar manufacturers.

This statement was publishe broadcast in the Boston papers. The cat was out:

"Organized workingmen" engaged in a just strike, and the officials of their union making deals with their exploiters to ignore the men en whose dues these leaders are living. But as tho' to leave no doubt as to how this statement came about, the cigar manufacturers added the following explanation to their first statement, which is even to only a logical developmen class struggle (and a sufficient jitel of the existence of that swhich is sometimes foolishly or kingle of the chief of that class spirit consciousness, class solidarity, will be official of the union and the cigar they can be constituted of the Socialist on "Attitude of the Socialist Party towards Trades Unions."

Our most developed manufacturing enterprises are the two breweries, of which one is a branch of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Co., of St. Louis, Mo.

The Businessmen's Club, a conglomera tion of lawyers, doctors, real estate men, merchants, etc., are frantically crying for more factories, praising the natural advantages of our city in the most approved country-fair style. As one of the greatest advantages is held out that labor is cheap. dirt cheap, down here. add his name to the already large list of exploiters of labor on a small or large scale, and then our ancient city will bubble over with "prosperity."

The goal of most wage-workers, scattered in the various shops and factories (especially in the earlier days), has been the possession of a home. That gained their interests became identical with the middle class; and how they went into ecstacies at the city elections when some "reform" candidate for Mayor promised to reduce taxes! How many of their fellow-toilers fell by the wayside in the struggle to acquire or maintain their homestead never led them to think for one moment. Those organized in pure and simple unions are toe hidebound to know what the solidarity of the working class means, and they are, with few exceptions, our greatest antagonists here as elsewhere. That these men feel themselves more identified with the middle class is clearly shown by the standing headlines in the official organ of San Antonie's labor, the Weckly Dispatch, controled by the Trades Council. The head-lines run as follows:

If the city owned the electric light plant, TAXES would be reduced. If the city owned the water works, TAXES would be reduced. If the city owned the street railway. TAXES would be reduced.

It is hard to make workers believed that there is such a thing as a class struggle when employer and employee are members of the same lodge, of which there members of the same lodge, of which there are numerous ones here.

That brings me to another chapter illustrating what an amount of uphill work we have. These secret societies, with all their mummery, ceremonies, sick and death benefits, etc., have a surprising attraction for the smaller man and fer the workmen who have not become class conscious. With great glee they attend the social functions, blow-outs, etc., and promptly pay the dues and extra assessment. promptly pay the dues and extra as ments—all in the hope of leaving families in easy circumstances, when puts an end to their earthly career. families in easy circumstances, when death puts an end to their earthly career. All goes well so long as the workmen has a steady job, or the small middle-class man a paying business. But the last ten years ought to have taught a lesson to everyman whose thinking apparatus is in good working order. Alas, it has not! "They have ears to bear and hear not, eyes to see and see not." Assessments are growing larger from year to year, and one day the would-be beneficiary finds himself without work and unable to pay his dues. All the money he has paid in these many years is beyond recovery, and the future of his dear ones, whom he tried to shield beyond his own life, unassured.

Many of my personal acquaintances went through the experience, and still the organizers of these beneficiary orders are catching new victims daily. Not to say anything about the instability of these organizations, how different would it be if anything about the instability of these or-ganizations, how different would it be if all these men could be induced to employ but one-fourth of that money and energy in the effort to bring about a complete revolution of our economic conditions, rendering superfluous the necessity of try-ing to provide for the future by pinching oneself. To teach these poor dupes that it is much more rational to leave to their descendants a social order in which every worker is able to employ himself and is assured that he will receive the full social share of his labor, thereby eliminating all assured that he will receive the full social share of his labor, thereby eliminating all beneficiary or other organizations, is the mission of the Socialist Labor Pastra. Down with all fakirs, whether they be found in or outside of so-called labor organizations! They all live off the working class.

In closing I wish to relate an incident illustrating both the fate of an educated preletarian under our present system and the shortcomings of the beneficiary organizations for workingmen. One Arthur the shortcomings of the beneficiary organizations for workingmen. One Arthur Blenker, for many years claim agent for a local large jobber, committed suicide on New car's day. He was one of the hest and most conscientious workers the firm ever employed, but for several years past his hearing had been impaired, and of late, caused by excessive and straining work, his eyes began to weaken. Upon consultation a specialist told him that he had to give up work on books, else his eyesight would be gone ere long. Being physically barred from any other work, nearly deaf, he knew his fate. FRICK OUT ON STRIKE.

Henry Clay Frick, the partner of Andrew Carnegie, of church-organ fame, has struck against his partner. This, in a nutshell, is the gist of the bill in equity filed on the 12th instant by Mr. Frick in Allegheny County, to restrict Mr. Carnegle from appropriating to himself large sums of moneys which the petitioner claims are his by right.

Already the "reform" press, together with its kindred-the yellow journalshave broken out with their morbid railleries on the "quarrels of greedy capitalists." But greed or no greed, the Frick-Carnegie conflict is meat for sober consideration, wholly unconnected with "personalities" and well connected with some of the wheels in the internal mechanism of capitalism.

It is a capitalist theory—the Depews have after-dinnered on it; 'the "Rev." Paxtons of Russell Sage imbroglio fame have made it the text of many a sermon; the lackey professors have bestowed essays on the subject; the Green Goods Guntons have delivered "labor addresses" on the motto; capitailst political stump speakers have yelled themselves hoarse thereon; capitalist courts have rendered decisions to that effect, and, unless our memory plays us false, the Carnegies themselves have, in lecture halls and other places orated thereon-that "the capitalist and the workingmen are partners." That this theory is but capitalist film-flam and what the film-flam is intended to conceal, the suit of Frick vs. Carnegie will help to illustrate.

What the rights-at least, the powers of partners are, may be seen from this suit. A partner who thinks himself aggrieved can set in operation the machinery of government in his behalf; and that machinesy is ready at hand with the power to enforce its decisions: back of the placidly calm court decrees stands the physical power of marshals, sheriffs, police, militia, and if need be, ederal troops. All of these are within thereach of the "partner." Even those who never thought of that, must realize it now; even if they do not go through the thrillingly interesting detailed statements of Mr. Frick's bill in equity, the headlines, graciously furnished by the papers, give the hint quite clearly. Now, stick a pin there.

What's sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander. What one "partner" may do, another must also be able to do. No opportunities for governmental redress open to one "partner" may be barred out to another "partner." In short, a "partner" is a "partner." Now, then, if capitalists and their workingmen are "partners," and one of these partners, the capitalist, has certain remedies, such as we see Mr. Frick resorting to, it must inevitably follow that the other partners have access to the same remedies.

About eight years ago, 4,000 "partners" of Messrs. Frick & Curnegie (the steel and iron workers employed by the concern) felt themselves aggrieved. against their "partners," Carnegie & Frick, upon lines identical in substance with those upon which Partner Frick now feels aggrieved against Partner Carnegie: they also claimed that their 'partners" (Frick & Carnegie) were trying to "freeze them out" and to deprive them of sundry sums of money due to them as their share in the "partnership." Did these 4,000 "partners" file a bill in equity against their capitalist "nartners?" To put the question is to answer it. They could not; the mechanism of capitalist law provided no wheel for THEM to turn in their favor. The only wheels that could at all turn in that instance were not accessible to them; these were the police and militia; and these did turn, and with a vengeance, and ground the "partner" working man to dust. The contrast between what Partner Frick can do the moment he apprehends that Partner Carnegie is seeking to "freeze him out." and what Partner Labor could do, when it felt itself being frozen but" tells the tale, and exposes the "partnership of capitalists and workingmen" swindle.

The working class is a slave class, with the capitalist as its master; and the mechanism of capitalist society tears to shreds all the silly drapery of 'partnership," "brotherhood," etc., with which capitalist knavery tries to conceal the fact.

THE STRUGGLE FOR RIGHT.

With the beginning of the present war in South Africa, some "moral" capitalist papers began to moralize on the affair from a singularly vulgar. viewpoint, and have kept it up ever since. Their line of argument is this:

"It matters not whether the Boers or whether the English are right. Say the Boers are: even then every humane man must wish them to be speedily defeated. The power of England is tremendous: that of the Boers is insignificant by comparison. They are bound to lose. The sooner they lose the less will the effusion of blood be at an end. Humanity demands the speedy defeat of the Boers."

Such reasoning insinuates the quinessence of vulgarity and immorality in

We shall not here waste much space on the fact that what has been taken for "tremendous power" more than once has gone down before what was taken for insignificance in comparison. Nor care we to make much of the fact that the point happens to have been illustrated by the very race that now is standing up against England. The power of Spain was in the sixteenth century more overshadowing than that of England is to-day, and yet it was the ancestors of these very South Africa Hollanders who stood up in Europe against, and after eighty years of struggle, wrung their freedom from the then "Omnipotent" Spain. Nor is it important to the purpose to inquire on whose side-Boer or British-right lies in this conflict. The vulgarity and immorality of the stand taken by those who, proceeding from the theory that the Boers are bound to lose in the end, therefore they should surrender from the start, lies in this, that, upon such principle, Wrong would have free sway. Such an attitude is typically bourgeois in its poltroonery.

Whether able to successfully resist Wrong, or not, the moral man will ever strike a blow for Right. No such blow ever is lost. Wrong, resisted, even if unsuccessfully, is Wrong weakened; and no effort in that direction is ever

The final victory of Right has for its broad basis untold preliminary blows for Right, that failed to be completely successful. Whatever in civilization is to-day worth having, is the combined echo of all the blows that have ever been struck for Right-not one of them not counting.

GUILTY!

The final affidavits of the "Volkszei-tung" in the case that Section New York brought before the Attorney-Gen-eral for the dissolution of the corpora-tion ion may be summed up in the word Guilty" and the confession is made all eral for the dissolution of the corporation may be summed up in the word "Guilty" and the confession is made all the more emphatic by the volume of words with which the attempt is made to cover up the ugly word.

The infamy of long withholding moneys collected for the Idaho miners, the padded appearance of the "assets," these and several other charges are all proven by the very nature of the attempted denials; the charge of a sinking and now ridiculously small circulation (about 6,000) so small as to convict the paper of the crime of raising money under false pretenses in the gathering of advertisements—this charge is proved by silence, with not the least attempt made to deny it. As far as this set of charges is concerned, the fact stands out clear that the "Volkszeitung" is an immoral concern, run for immoral purposes, whose connection with the Labor Movement of America could not too soon be severed.

But there was another set of charges throwing light upon another feature of the case, to wit, the charges showing that the "Volkszeitung" of right belongs to Section New York, S. L. P., but has been stolen from it. This charge was grounded on the history of the organization of the Publishing Association, and was stated in the preliminary americal states. Schwab, who, in his affadavit in rebuttal, gave what purported to be, of his own knowledge, the real history of the formation of the Publishing Association. In that amdavit a wholly different stery was told, and the Publishing Association was represented as the property of its stockholders.

Thereupon, Section New York staved in the head of the Amerchist affidavit with documentary prior, as published in THE PBOPLE of the 4th inst. In these, its closing affidavits, the "Volksacitung" presents upon this point the figure of a nailed toad. Its answer is to the effect that "it does not remember anything on the subject." !!!

The Party press must be the Party's property, absolutely and unqualifiedly, and guarded like the apple of its eye. The confiding laxness of the past must be and is at an end.

By the burning ruins of the "Volkszeitung," a lesson of first magnitude is taught.

Two articles in this week's front page -the one reporting the signal victory of Arthur Keep in Wallingford, Ct., over capitalist pelitician at a workingman's meeting; the other reporting the recent conflict in Boston, Mass., beween the cigarmakers and their employees—contribute their ample share to make two things evident: First, that the capitalists are a lot of ungrateful dogs not to raise statues of gold for the Labor Fakirs. The two articles, each in its way, reveal the fact that pure-and-simpledom is a capitalist ally, keeping, on the one hand, the workers in a mental condition to be devoured by the capitalist sharks.

Second, that the Socialist needs but bravely to break in, and the fakirs' spell is broken.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 19.—Municipal nominations of the Socialist Labor Party have been made, 1,700 signatures on nomination blanks collected on them and duly filed.

Now that the cheat Miller, of Franklin Syndicate notoriety, has been nabbed, and that his "partners" and other agencies in crime are being raked in, mourning, thick and black, has fallen over wide areas of the New York kangaroos, many of whom had officiated as pullers-in for Miller. They expect at every moment to be rabbed, too. If these gentlemen are locked up, it will seriouly affect the kangaroo plan of indulging in a "trial of strength;" i. e., setting up a ticket under their own name. The locking up of tweety, or even ten, kangaroos would simply deglete the kangaroo "forces."

POLITICAL and ECONOMIC.

The New York New Era recently furnished as horrible an example as can be wished for of the horrible habit of flinging phrases that convey no meaning.

Answering a correspondent, who urged the excellencies of the Socialist Labor Party, the New Era, with manyflattering remarks upon the "pluck," "persistence," etc., etc., of the Socialists, closes, saying :

"But what we are surprised at in their (the Socialists') course is their persistent adherence to the attempt to secure the adoption of their ideal under the present 'party' system."

What is meant here by the phrase, "the present party system?" It is a meaning-less expression, conveying no idea, and, beginning with the New Era itself, could not be explained; at any rate, utterly unexplainable remains the theory that the existing party system stands, or possibly could stand in the way of a political view's being carried to victory.

When such vague, and, through their vagueness, misleading phrases are used. one must avoid increasing the confusion that they create by attempting to explain what might possibly be in their utterer's mind. The fact remains that the "present party system." whatever that may mean, in no way stands in the path of Socialism; on the contrary, it is a parliamentary way of "ascertaining the mind of the hot . and as such it is a weapon of civilized warfare.

The Seattle, Wash., Union Record illustrates how unwise it is for a bad reasoner to furnish the reasons for his conclusions. It publishes as a "conclusion," the view that "the American Federation of Labor is a glorious reality." Had it stuck to that and gone no further, one might leave its "conclusion" untouched: "a glorious reality" may be a correct term for the A. F. of L. as far as its off labor fakirs are concerned, who, through the A. F. of L. can rake in boodle to their hearts' content; the term "a glorious reality," may, therefore, be quite correct in such an instance. Unfortunately, however, for the Union Record it proceeds to give the reasons for its conclusion, and therein slips badly. It says:

"The labor union (the A. F. of L.) helps the union men to achieve their mediate sordid ends, the filling of their stomachs at the least expenditure of ef-

This reason is false. Let the thousands upon thousands of A. F. of L. compositors, who are going about asking for old clothes and other cast off utilities; speak up; let the thousands upon thousands A. F. of L. cigarmakers, working. if at all working, for starvation wages at the expenditure of long hours of ef-fort, speak up; let the A. F. of L. miners, who are starved for bread and fed on lead, speak up; and so down the list. them, the A. F. of L., whatever else it may be, is certainly not "glorious;" a reality it is, but it is that kind of a reality that victims are not apt to glorify.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat had better read up on the history of parties in America. If it did, it would be more cautious how it sneers at "third parties:" it would know that all its talk about "this country not having room for more than two parties" is silly. The history of this country is the history of successful third parties. The present G. O. P. itself was a "third party" at one time, and infinitely weaker than the S. L. P. is to-day.

FRENCH SOCIALISTS.

Their Attitude on Party Discipline and Liberty.

A few weeks ago a cursory view of the French Socialist Congress was given in these columns: that is, such a view only as the unofficial and therefore incomplete or colored reports at hand, supplemented by certain data otherwise available, permitted to present with necessary reservations. But in the light of additional information and recent occurrences, the tions. But in the light of additional information and recent occurrences, the two salient points to which specians attention was then called; namely (1), the Guesdes amendment against Socialist participation in bourgeois government, and (2) the subjection of papers calling themselves Socialist organs to the control of the Party—appear in bolder relief and may be definitely termed the easentlal acts of the Congress. Not only they constitute the basis of the union which it was the purpose of that representative gathering to effect between the various Socialist fractions, but they are the fundamental conditions upon which alone this union, formally accepted and decreed by the Cougress, can pass from its present damental conditions upon which alone this union, formally accepted and decreed by the Cougress, can pass from its present state of abstract resolution into the domain of concrete facts.

As already explained, the Congress was in part composed of delegates representing organizations that had welcomed the entrance of Millerand in the Waldeck-Rousseau cabinet. But the majority was composed of Guesdists and Blanquists, stern militants, led by veterans of the International and the Commune, opposed to any individual act of prominent Socialists, and with stronger reason to any party policy that mir-at involve, or be construed as involving, an economic compromise with the bourgeoisie, a political alliance with a bourgeois party, or a deviation of any sort and under any circumstances from the straight class conscious line of battele plainly marked out by the very nature of the class struggle.

"Socialist" Press.

"Socialist" Press.

"Socialist" Press.

Now it must be observed that, with the exception of a few special trade and l'arty organs, chiefly weeklies of limited circulation. the "Socialist" press of France actually belongs to capitalists or bourgeois of a liberal turn of mind, who, for reasons best known to themselves, allow their property to be used for socialistic propaganda. It was with money supplied by persons of means that La Petite Republique was founded by Millerand as an "independent Socialist newspaper," for the declared purpose of "uniting" the Socialist fractions into one great political party.

ing" the Socialist fractions into one great political party.

La Lanterne is owned by the multimillionaire. Pereire, a family name, it is true, not less famous in the history of the Saint-Simonians (or Utopian Socialists of sixty-five years ago) than in the annals of corrupt finance under the imperial regime of Napoleon-le-petit.

La Depoche, of Toulouse, a provincial daily, whose circulation extends over thirty departments of France, numbers among its regular contributors, by the side of Millerand and Jaures, such Radical Republicans and Radical Socialists, so-called, as G. Clemenceau, Camille Pelletan, Henry Berenger, etc., all supporters of Millerand—at léast for the time being.

To the American bonafide Socialist.

letan. Henry Berenger, etc., all supporters of Millerand—at léast for the time being.

To the American bonafide Socialist. now digging deeply into his pocket for a DAILY PROPLE that shall belong to his own Socialist Labor Party, this state of the French Socialist press must appear extraordinary and deplorable. Yet, all things considered, it is less extraordinary, and unquestionably less disgusting, than the state of that portion of the German-American press, which, founded by Socialists with Socialist money, has become the mouthpiece of the meanest and dirtiest middle class interests, and entered into a corrupt alliance with the most unscrupuluos labor fakirs for the disruption of the Socialist Labor Party.

In France, a number of "intellectuals." high minded and well intentioned, shocked at the economic and political crimes of the capitalist powers, were attracted to Socialism by the force which its well trained proletarian cohorts had begun to display under the lead of stalwart ngitators. Before they had broken away from their middle class moorings, these new converts were already popular writers and orators, enjoying, as advanced Republicans, the confidence of many workingmen, to whom Socialism was still a sealed book or a red spectre. But the moment they declared themselves Socialists, they were without an organ through which they could speak to their poor followers, and they could not have any unless the capitalists who had previously exploited their brains—the capitalists especially engaged in the manufacture of newspapers—were prevailed upon, or spontaneously moved by fear or greed, to provide the means for the creation of a Socialist press. And it must be granted that, with the instrument thus placed in their hands, considering all the difficulties sufficiently suggested by the character of its ownership, these men upon the whole, did magnificent work. One may regret the mistake they made in considering and countenancing the entrance of Millerand in the cabinet as a Socialist victory productive of perma

French Anti-Popery.

Of course the Radical Republicans and Radical Socialists, so-called—the great bourgeois intellectuals upon whom their former associates, now simply "Socialists," had vainly called for several years to honestly give up their mental acrobatics on the edge of the social revolutionary torrent, and to bravely cast themselves into its impetuous waters themselves into its impetuous waters-were incensed at the decisions of the Conwere incensed at the decisions of the Congress. In the Toulouse paper, La Depeche, Henri Berenger promptly came out with surpassing eloquence of the idealistic order in condemnation of the "Pope" Jules Guesdes, and in defense of the "free individual." The "narrow discipline" of the Guesdists is intolerable to that "broad intellectual." who never was and never will be a Socialist, yet prays ever so much for Socialist unity. "Think." he says, "of a central committree empowered to control the acts and the very thought of the deputies and journalists of the Party. Mediocre men controlling—aye. censuring—such men as Jaurea, Gerault-Richard, Viviani or Fourniere."

But Berenger had hardly stepped forward as the champion of Jaures' independence, when Jaures himself laid him

low. Hear this statement in his vigorous reply, published a few days latter by the same paper, under the significant heading, "Discipline and Liberty:"

"According to M. Berenger and other persons, Guesdes and his friends asave imposed upon those who were known as Independent, Socialists, and who now want to be called briefly Bocialists, a liscipline repugnant to their notions of liberty. This is a downright untruth.

That we demanded Party unity, logially implied that we did not want general chaos substituted for divided organization. We had a thorough comprehension of the fact NNNNNFRENCH S. JALISTSU UUI that the larger the Party would be, the more imperative would the necessity become of an effective control over its representatives, mouthpieces and agents of all norts. And let me say right here, without, I believe, committing a breach of propriety, and solely for the puspose af putting to an end all possible misappre heasien, that the text adopted by the Congress was the very text which I had submitted to the commission, not only concerning the chief features of the organization plan, but notably concerning the press."

tion plan, but notably concerning the press."

Having thus plainly stated his position and the share he took in bringing forth the very measures which proved so shocking to the Berenger class of "broad intellectuals." Jaures examines their arguments and in his masterly style makes kindling wood of their free lances. "By definition," he says, "a party is composed of men bound together by common ideas, purposes and methods. These men, these units would otherwise constitute a mob, not a party. . . It is not merely the right of the organized proletariat, when, after a long period of physical and intellectual conflict, it has reached that state of cohesion and consciousness which takes form in one great Socialist Party; but it is its imperative duty—aye, its sutakes form in one great Socialist Party; but it is its imperative duty—aye, its supreme law of safety, its law of life and action—to cast out of its body every element of disruption. It is proper, it is necessary, it is inevitable, and it is good for it to exercise over its adherents the control provided for by our Congress. If a self-styled Socialist writer ridicules or adulterates the doctrines of the Party, ignores its declarations, or professes conpores its declarations. adulterates the doctrines of the Party, ignores its declarations, or professes contempt for its decisions, let the commission appointed by the Party take such measures as will effectually orevent him from surprising the good faith of its militants; let the warning be instantly issued by the appointed guardians of the Party's integrity: Beware, comrades! This man, who claims to be with us, is not of us."

And mark this sentence every word of claims to be with us, is not of us."

And mark this sentence, every word of which would literally apply to the conflict between our own Socialist Labor Party and the Volkszcitung conspirators: "What! A so-called Socialist organ—a paper claiming to be exclusively socialist—will ridicule a Party concept, or more perfidious still, will attempt to switch off the working class movement on a track off the working class movement on a track of empirical bourgeois reformism, and the repudiation of such a paper by the Social-ist Party, be deemed an act of tyranny! Nonsense!"

Union Implies Discipline.

Union Implies Discipline.

Concerning his own vigorous initiative and prodigious activity in he agitation consequent upon the Dreyfus affair. Jaures explains that he did not obey the impulse of his own revolted conscience until he had, owing to the lack of Party unity, failed to bring together in conference the various Socialist fractions. Had the Party then been organized as it now is, he would not have experienced any difficulty in presenting his views, and he would, of course have pressed upon its consideration the importance and benefit of collective action. To be sure some deconsideration the importance and benefit of collective action. To be sure some delay might have been caused by discussion, but in the end "we would have appeared on the field of battle with a force a hundredfold greater than we were able to muster by individual action." In the councils of the Party the greatest freedom of speech and opinion must and does prevail, as was sufficiently shown at the Congress, but when we face the enemy we must present an unbroken front, and the decisions of the Party must be carried out without a murmur.

we must present an unbroken front, and the decisions of the Party must be carried out without a murmur.

And Jaures concludes: "O ye intellectuals: Merged into the Party, moved by its proletarian spirit, directed by its clear sighted, class conscious will, you can be a great force. Outside of it, left to your individual impulses, you can never be but uncertain shadows, such as are seen upon ruined walls on a half sunny day?"

Manifestly, in his conception of "Discipline and Liberty," Jaures is at one with the "suspending" N. E. C. of the United States Socialist Labor Party, but it is the good fortune of our French comrades that the refractory elements which he rightly says must be disowned and kept out, are generally of honest, though hard metal, already more or less improved by Socialist pressure, and capable, perhaps, of further amelioration by severe treatment, whereas the American kangaroo is a degenerate-gapable only of further degeneracy under treatment of any sort.

So far, therefore, as his actions are a sare function of capital—endowed as capital is, in his person, with consciousness and a will—his own private consumption is a robbery perpetrated on accumulation, just as in bookkeeping by double entry, the private expenditure of the capitalist is placed on the debtor side of his account against his capital. To accumulate is to conquer the world of social wealth, to increase the mass of human beings exploited by him, and thus to extend both the direct and the indirect sway of the capitalist.

But original sin is at work everywhere. As capitalist production, accumulation and wealth become developed, the capitalist ceases to be the mere incarnation of capital. He has a fellow feeling for his bwn Adam, and his education gradually enables him to smile at the rage for asceticism as a mere prejudice of the old-fashioned miser. At the historical dawn of capitalist production—and every capitalist upstart has personally to go through this historical stage—avarice and desire to get rich are the ruling passions. But the progress of capitalist production not only greates a world of delights; it lays open, in speculation and the credit system, a thousand sources o, sudden enrichment.
When a certain stage of development has been reached, a conventional degree of prodigality, which is also an exhibition of wealth, and, consequently, a source of credit, becomes a business necessity to the "unfortunate" capitalist. Luxury enters the capitalis expenses of representation.
Moreover, the capitalist. Luxury enters
the capitalis expenses of representation.
Moreover, the capitalist produce to the labor-power of others, and enforces on the laborer abstinence from all life's enjoymen's. Although, therefore, the prodignity of the capitalist never possesses the bona dries character of the open-handed feddal ord's prodigality, but, on the coutarry, has always lurking behind it the most servicial avarice and the most anxious calculation, yet his expenditure grows with his accumulation, without the one mecessarily restricting the other. But along with this growth, there is at the same time developed in his breast a Faustian conflict between the passion for accumulation and the desire for enjoyment.

Dr. Aikin says, in a work published in 1705: "The trade of Manchester may de divided into four periods. First when manufacturers were obliged to work hard for their livelihood." They enriched themselves chiefly by robbing the parents

his bosom the awful conflict between the desire for enjoyment and the chase after riches. Malthus, about the year 1820, advocated a division of labor, which assigns to the capitalist actually engaged in production, the business of accumulating, and to the other sharers in strylus value—to the landlords, the place men, the beneficed clergy, etc.—the business of spending. It is of the highest importance, he says, "to keep separate the passion for excumulation." The capitalists, having long been good livers and men of the world, uttered loud cries. "What," exclaimed one of their spokesnen, a disciple of Ricardo, "Mr. Malthus preaches high rents, heavy taxes, etc., so that the pressure of the spur may constantly be kept on the industrious by unproductive consumers! By all means production, production on a constantly increasing scale, runs the shibboleth; but production will, by such a process, be far more eurbed in than spurred on. Nor is it quire fair thus to maintain in idleness a number of persons, only to pinch others, who are likely, from their characters, if you can force them to work, to work with success." Unfair as he finds it to spur on the industrial capitalist, by depriving his bread of its butter, yet he thinks it necessary to reduce the laborer's wages to a minimum in order "to keep him industrious." Nor does he for a moment conceal the fact that the appropriation of unpaid labor is the secret of surplus value.

Vulgar Phrases Instead of Actual Facts

The learned disputation—bow the booty Vulgar Phrases Instead of Actual Facts

The learned disputation—how the booty pumped out of the laborer may be divided, with most advantage to accumulation, between the industrial capitalist and the rich idler—was hushed in face of the French Revolution of July. Shortly afterward the town proletariat at Lyons sounded the tocsin of revolution, and the country proletariat of England began to set fire to farmyards and cornstacks. In England, Owenism began to spread; on the continent, St. Simonism an Fourierism. The hour of vulgar economy had struck. Exactly a year before Nassau W. Senior had discovered, at Manchester, that the profit (including Interest) of capital is the product of the last hour of the twelve, he had announced to the world another discovery. "I substitute," he proudly says, "for the word capital, considered as an instrument of production, the word abstinence." An unparalleled sample this, of the discoveries of vulgar economy! It substitutes for an economic category, a sycophantic phrase—void tout. "When the savage," says Senior, "makes bows, he exercises an industry, but he does not practice abstinence." This explains how and why, in the earlier states of society, the implements of labor were fabricated without abstinence is demanded "—namely from those who ply the industry of appropriating the fruits of other's industry. All the conditions for carrynig on the labor process are suddenly converted into so many acts of abstinence on the part of the capitalist. If the corn is not all eaten, but part of it also sown—abstinence of the capitalist took his isown self, whenever, by incorporating labor power with them, he uses them to extract surplus value out of that labor proper instead of eating them up—steamengines, cotton, railways, manure, horses and all; or, as the vulgar economist childishly puts it, instead of dissipating "their value" in luxuries and other articles of consumption. How the capitalist, if the world still jogs on, solely through that the world still jogs on, solely through the efficianstisement af this medyron and tempta

This book can still be obtained, and a glance at its contents will show its importance at this time, especially to those who have joined the Party since then, and desire information as to its growth anterior to their joining.

The Swindle Label in Detreit.

To TRE PROPLE.—I wish to add my testimosy to value, or, rather lack of value and even farmfulness of the cigarmakers label to that of your contributors.

This town, before the great strike, a few years ago, was considered a fairly good label town: but since then it is, as we say in the trade. "On the bundler of the work of the strick and lost. Then the union and the A. F. of L. boycotted all the non-union shops. Well, we thought that we would soon smash the bosses to pieces. But the result is this: We has more cigarmakers in this city now than ever before, but we have less union members; the union shops are doing less business, but the boycotted shops are working night and day.

Now, every effort was made to injure the trade of the non-union shops, hoping thereby to force them to terms; but our label has no effect; in fact, the mon-union shops are doing so well that in a short time there is to be a new shop opened in what we call it the "Pollack district." where edgars are

It is a positive fact that the large sums of money raised by the rank and file for "label agitation" do not do any good whatever: they do good only to the labor fakirs who are put on junketing tours to "boom label."

As to the Utah Constitutional Amendment for endum and Initiative.

Socialist Labor Party of this state, and i desire information.

At the meeting of the last State Legislature of Utah, a resolution passed both branches by a very large majority proposing an amendment to the state constitution relatin to direct legislation by the people. Section 1, after defining the duties of the State Legislature, adds a subdivision as follows:

State Legislature, adds a subdivision as follows:

"2d, and the people of the state of Utah as hereinafter stated: The legal voters of such fractional part thereof, of the state of Utah as may be provided by law under sten conditions and in such time as may be provided by law, may institute any desired legislation and cause the same to be submitted to a vote of the people for approval or rejection, or may require any taw passed by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to the state of the lawfalation to be submitted to a vote of the members elected to the state of the lawfalation to be sub-or rejection, or may require any law passed by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to each house of the legislature, to be submitted to the voters of the state before such law take effect.

"The legal voters, or such fraction thereof, as may be provided to "w, of any legal subdivision of the state under such conditions and in such manner and within such time as may be provided by law may limitine as may be provided by law may limitine as may be provided by law may limitine as may be provided by law on the same to be submitted to the vote of the people of such legal subdivision for appreval or telection, or may require any law or ordinance nasset by the law making body of said legal subdivision to be submitted to the voters thereof before any such law or ordinance shall take effect."

Section 2 provides that the registration of all laws regarding this enacting classes etc., etc., and goes on to provide for the submitting of the resolution to the vote of the people at the next general election.

Now, having stated the scope of the resolution as briefly as I could, I ask if, holding the political faith that I do, it would be consistent for me to vote for the proposed coastitutional amendment when it is submitted to the people next November?

Member Section Sait Lake City. Sait Lake City, Utah, Feb. 10.

Most assuredly, vote for the proposed amendment. Coming up in the manner it does, the only possible danger that it can bring along is the danger of the superstition that in many minds attaches to the power of form. That danger must be left for the Utah comrades to counterned and remove. They will have to emphasize in and out of season, the fact that there is no mystic power in a referendum for any capitalist candidate because be or his party promises the referendum. It is such a case the answer would be emphatically. No. Capitalist parties could will afford to promise referendams, etc., and use such promises as beit to catch labor votes with, whereby to keep the militiar, military and other powers in capital. It is blands, while at the sause time cheating the people with the notion that the referendum is in uself a panacea.—Ep. The People.

The present leather industry here is owned by a few capitalists unknown in Woburn, while of course the large number of wageworkers, citizens of Woburn, have no chance of ever becoming manufacturers themselves. That is foreing them to study the principles of their own class laterest politically, so that the small glasymoth, politicians will see their finish with the sid of Socialist speakers and organizers. This could be made one of the first Socialist cities in Massachusetts. There is about every year some worknyman elected to the city council, but they are not conscious of their class interest; they serve the capitalist class without knowing what they are doing.

Was is Les mit Teps?

To The Proper—A thing is happening here that raises questions thick as black birds in September.

The Debs or Social Democracy of America and Patagonia is notoriously a thing run on the bourgesis advertising or circus plan. It must make noise, imply aumbers, fill the eyes as well as the ears of the people. If it done, it has no chance; only if it does can it hope to catch suckers, and make believe that there is something in it. It carries this feature as a birth-mark. From the time it was launched, down to to-day, it has been a tom-tom teating sort of affair. This everybody knows.

But now comes a stunner. Its national convention approaches. It will be here in a little over two weeks. It is to be held in this city on the Sth of next month. In view of the noise making characteristics, without which that party can't exist in any way, the expectation was surely justified that on the occasion of its national convention, it would "lay itself out," making a grand splurge, in the way of meeting in large numbers and in a proportional hall. Now, this expectation proves faise. The place where the convention is to be held is the SMALLEST RAIL TO BE FOUND, AND IN A SIDE SIRPET, AT THAT.

What may all this music mean? Was is loss mit Teps? people are asking. Way so modest, so quiet, so unobtusive a convention?

Mest people who ask the question, or to whom it is nut to allenty shows that

What may all this music mean? Was is los mic Teps? people are saking. Way so modest, so quiet, so unoblustive a convention?

Most people who ask the question, or to whom it is put to, silently shrug their shoulders like the shotted frog in Mark Iwain's story. Others advance theories. The following is one of the theories one hears, to wit:

'You see: it is this way. Debs never meant it seriously with his party. He is incapable of continuity in anything. If the party had swung up the way his morbid imagination imagined, well and good. But it didn't, and Debs naturally dropped out. He was then taken in hand by some money-shrewd focks, who schemed the pian of turning am into a public lecturer. The thing has been a rearing success, in a way. To make it a success, the fakirs and the pure and simple unions had to be "worked" they were worked for all they were worth. Now, seep in mind: that to get these men and hodles to pay a lecturer, he must be monouritism. Into a lecturer, he must be monouritism. In the to say, he must be a more sermonizer. he must never utter h'asself in favor of a certain political party. Debs has been doing this to perfection, and raking in the sheekels. How would it look, in view of all this if his Nocial Democracy were to make a great splurge by obtinging its national convention upon the public brough big halls, etc., etc.? That wouldn't he hollow house would convey the idea that it is a serious political affair, it would simply out off Dels from further supplies. The fakirs and the pure and simple unions could not stand that "Non-partisapship' is essential to their crunt practices," Now, this is the secret of why Debs den't want the hollow honor of a presidential nonhation from his narty, and why its convention is to hide its light under the bushel of a small hall in a side street. That's what's los mit Teps."

I believe this theory to be correct.

A Warning to New Converts.

To The Proprise—I receive TRE PROPRE regularly. The only fault I have to find with it is that it wastes altogether too much time and space on the other Socialist organ I think it would be better to print less of this, and more that is of general interest to its readers. It looks as though the editors of the paper were all wrapped up in this fight and didn't think of uch else, but they ought to realize that they are more interested in the fight than their readers, and give the readers a little more of what they want.

New York, Feb. 16.

The opinion above expressed is as mistaken as it is natural. It probably comes from some new convert. To him and aliothers who entertain such views, we would all attention to the below item from The People of the 4th instant, which met such criticisms by anticipation. The item was this:

"Let none look lightly upon the documents that are being published in the case of Section New York. Socialist Labor Party, against the Volkszeitung Corporation. They should be read with attention; they are invaluable. Agitation for Socialism is not enough; knowledge of exocomics is not enough; one must also know and theroughly understand the sort of obstacles that rise in the path of the Movement of Labor. As a knowledge of the starts is not enough for the mayigator, but must also know the locations of the sunken reefs, so is the science of Socialism not enough to the militant; he must be posted upon the character of the reeis that rise and are apt to rise in his path." size in and out of season, the fact that there is no mystic power in a referendum or initiative vote, any more than there is any election vote; that the suffrage is only a means to express a conviction; and that the suffrage can not rise above the intelligence that cast it. The right to vote for candidates to office does not impart the cortect knowledge of whom to vote for candidates returned to office by workingmen's votes. Similarly it would be in the case of the referendum. It is merely an opportunity for the workers to express intelligence to do that, the opportunity will remain utilized, just as new the opportunity to vote for the right candidate goes to waste; and such added opportunity would only serve to rivet upon the working class, by their acts, the yoke of capitalism that they bear. It will be the Utah S. L. P.'s duty to make this fact clear, lest the superstifition, that the referendam will, of itself, work good, lead to added despondency through disappointment. Vote for this party to make this fact clear, lest the superstifition, that the referendam will, of itself, work good, lead to added despondency through disappointment. Vote for this party promises the perferendam. It is not enough for the navigator, by an and are apt to rise in his party.

It seems quite plausible to say that Socialism should be intereste, even a moment, selection, will show that this is an error. No principle can be enforced to the over-throw of an existing one without organization and practical work. This practical work implies an accurate knowledge of men aud things, and of how men and things, and

These words quoted from Proudhon are likewise torn from their context. He cites two dibustrations of property. He was a valugiorious fellow of no solid information, in fact of very little knowledge. When the Party in Syracuse, ten years ago, was-sin its infancy, he towered above the local Germans. THE FACTS IN THE CASE.

A Plain Statement of Conditions in Massachusetts.

Everything contained in this article was brought out at a meeting of Socialists held in Templar Hall, Boston, on Sunday, January 14, so it may be said that it is the almost unanimous utterance of the Socialists of Massachusetts. The meeting is memorable for two reasons: First, it was the largest gathering of Party members ever held in the state; second, it was a unit in action and desires.

It is a significant fact that whenever a crook or traitor yet remaining within our ranks discovers that he or she is in danger of discovery and exposure, or whenever a long trainof unsocialistic acts and utterances are to be brought before the Party, the persons concerned in committing the crimes suddenly discover that met only was the action of the alleged General Committee on July 10 "legal and constitutional, but that it was also just and necessary. We had little taint of kangarooism in the state, but there were certain weaknesses born of local conditions, or resulting from the questionable deeds of individuals. A stanuch state committee could have stamped if out in a week. An efficient state secretary could have held the state without wavering. We had but three out of seven—Usher, the secretary, being with us for the sake of the money he could get. As a consequence, little things grew to great things, and misunderstandings arose among the membership in some places. This misunderstanding, while not great enough to throw the state back, served as an irritant, and forced upon the shoulders of the uncerstanding, while not great enough to throw the state back, served as an irri-tant, and forced upon the shoulders of the incoming committee much work that might have been avoided. We here give the history of the causes, and it is per-haps the blackest story of petty treason of culpable ignorance and deficiency, and lof maticious vindictiveness and self-seek-ing in the annais of the r'arty. But it must be given to serve as a warning for the future.

must be given to serve as a warning for the future.

We became a three per cent Party in 1858, and were forced thereby to comender the state laws governing all official parties. The state committee had been sent to corcester throug the instrumentality of Mar. in Moore Avery, and from May, 1838, to November, when the election that gave us standing occurred, there were oppertunities to see that the lax elements in Worcester would cause us trouble. We would have temoved the committee at once had it not been for the liaw which says that when a new party obtains the necessary vote, it shall be recognized, and their officers shall be state officers until their successors are elected. In this case their successors are elected. In the party of the successors are elected. In this case their successors are elected. In this case their successors are elected. In this case their successors are elected. In the had not been long in office when he sent forth a call for a referendum vote on the proposition that the Party pay him ten dollars a month to end would recign unless it was given him. Some of us told Worcester to accept his resignation, but the city of "hard work" which Usher put up led the sections to give him what he asked. His own section and the loyal members of the S. C. C. voted solidly against it, as hithertofore the work had been willingly done for nothing, and had not increased. There were many staunch comrades in Worcester, but the reaction multified their effocts for the time being. We throughout the state would nor have complained of the outlay men. Thus she ran against the Party law, as well as against the election act. As the mession drew to a close, and with our ranks depleted by those who were forced to leave Worcester on account of their employment. Mrs. Avery arose on a question of privilege, and then when she had spoken over the limit, appealed from the chair and kept us there for two hours. The kangaroos could have entered and undone all our work, and that was what she waited for. She knew that our men must return to their employment, and could not stay. She has had no employment but that of draining the Party, so she could have easily stayed their for a month. However, we went on the ballot and survived that phase of treason.

After the convention, Usher took advantage of the situation of the S. C. C.—three loyal members, three kangaroos, and himself—and held if up for ten dollars a week in addition to the ten a month aiready voted him by the state. Again we protested, but Usher had us, and held us. We had a standing in the state, and unless we paid his demands now he could come at us later by process of law. In looking over his returns we find that during the last four months of the year the only expenditures were for the salary of L. D. Usher, and that Mrs. Avery get anything that was left. At the state conference three of the best auditors attempted to straighten out Usher's books but it was a hopeless task. In reply to all questions he said that he had "changed it half a dozen times on one page.

Last spring we voted to put a permanent

The Organizer.

Last spring we roted to put a permanent organizer on the road and to pay his expenses, and decided by referendum vote to form a society, the members of which were to form a society, the members of which were to pay ten cents a week. We also called for nominations, and Comrade Mailoney was chosen. This did not suit Mrs. Avery, who looked upon all money in the state as her right, but she did not suit of Mrs. Avery, who looked upon all money in the state as her right, but she did not stand for the position of organizer, because she knew that she would be defeated twenty to one. She worked against us, and forced I sher to do the same. She called the society "ansr-chistic," she retailed petty sianders about the organizer, and she threw what obstacles she could in our way. Goldstein did the same, though he claimed the position belonged to him, and that he could have had it for the sking. He did ask for it, and did not get it, because the S. C. C had no money to give it to him. Mrs. Avery also attempted to have the Boston City Committee hire Goldstein at three dollars a day, but Boston knew the people with whom it was dealing, and refused. The greatest cry was raised on the amount of wages paid. We could only afford twelve dollars a week and expenses, and in accepting it Mailoney give three dollars in and Avery accused him of "exambing" in taking less thun "Party wages"—three dollars a day and expenses as large as you can make them. Mrs. Avery has bied more than one weak section by her demands for "Party wages," a thing of which she alone seems to know.

Isher, though ordered by the state to assist us, would do nothing to further our project. The others, aided by a few simple minded tools, leave a trail of calumny and faisehood from Bernstable to Berkshire. We endured even that, because our ranky were swinging into position for the fight with capitalism, and the traitors we were carrying were overlooked for the time being, aithough they were worse than capitalists. The campaign came, and Usher's salary and Mrs. Avery's extortions took our last doilar. Then they came to the organizer found and took weat we had raised with so much trouble. "The petrified Germans." whom Mrs. Avery had so often mailgned, had given us a ball, and raised thereby about two hundred doilars. The comrades gave their dimes, and an honest expenditure of the money would have kept the organizer in the field with no trouble whatever. But Usher contracts ludicrous, corrupt and silly bills for printing; he takes personal expenses out of the fund; he jumps the organizer from one end of the state to another, and still we endured it and hoped against hope. In four weeks he squandered $164, and the sverage expense should not have been over twenty-five doilars a week. Then, without warning, he withdrew the organizer, saying that the funds were gone. At the same time he received an offer from the south eastern part of the state to furnish halls, pay expenses, etc., if Malloney would be sent on there. He refused, and we thereby lost one of the best chances of the year. Had he sat down and written to Boston, the money would have been forthorming in three days.

There was a section organized in Brockton which Usher took the trouble to kill. Money had been sent for charter and stamps, and after waiting a few weeks, one of the comrades wrote on to Usher. He said that the charter would be sent at offer. There was more delay, and in reply to repeated demands. Usher said that he had received no applic

The New State Committee.

This year the S. C. C. Is composed of men who must be elected at senatorial conventions. The caucusec at which delegates to these conventions are elected, are open, so it is possible for anyone who chooses to vote. The delegates assembled for organization, and found to their surprise that the hall was locked, and that Usher had a policeman inside. The Middlesex-Essex delegates were refused admission. These delegates were refused admission. These delegates were presenting Lynn, Weburn, Peabody. Stoneham and Wakefield were locked out because Usher had good cause to fear that they would nay especial attention to auditing his accounts. Four of our delegates were admitted, and as there were four oth the delegates legally elected, so business could have been done, were it not for the fact that Isher had given credentials to several men in whose district no caucuses, consequently no convention, had been held. These men were put on the credential committee. Comrade Winneck of the Suffolk district arose and said that it was wrong to place men whose credentials had been questioned on the committee. "No one has questioned on the committee." Then here and now question them," replied Commode Winneck, "and demand that those men be removed." No notice was taken of this most obvious point in parliamentary procedure, so our delegates withdrew, and with the other five legality elected delegates. Formed th S. C. C. When those men with Isher made their organization nermane. They placed themselves in our power, and we shall push the case against all concerned to the extreme limits of the law.

Goldstein, one of those present, and acting without having bean elected, tried hard to place the thing upon a plausible basis. He knew that with the former secretary incoming to brought the committee, so he wrote on to Worcester asking the chairman to come to Boston, and he, David Goldstein, in the could see it. We had been held

- Avery and Section Boston.

In 1807 Mrs. Avery became a free speech expert, and earned thereby some advertiseng, and as Section Boston afterwards found, she also earned some money when they were not looking. She was arrested on the streets of Roslindale, and Goldstein sent out subscription lists, with the order to return money and lists to him, instead of turning either the list or the money over to some other person. Mrs. Avery was selected for arrest because the section thought, as she was not working, and never is, that the expense would be slight. When the bills were paid, it was discovered that all over and above the costs to court had been given to Avery and Goldstein. They had done no more than the other comrades but they had the handling of the funds and used them for their own advantage. They were in office on the city committee, but at once there commenced a fight against them, and in the following year they were ousted. For three months they refused to surrender their books, and when finally the committee did obtain them it was discovered that the accounts were involved, and it took several moaths more to arrive at even at an approximate understanding of what the deficiency was. At last the committee found that there were about eighty dollars paid to Avery for which no warrants appeared. There was no recerd of their having been ordered paid, or of even having come up. There were other billifiat were questionable, but only the most giaring ones, after long and arduous search, were repudiated. She worked two weeks for the committee during the campaign, and she charged for the full fourtees days. During these two weeks, she took a trip to other cities in Massachusetts. She was paid for both, and yet she had obtained money for both days from Boston. Her incidental expenses are always something monarous, dollars for dinners, dollars for lunches, lunches and cities, the branch of the campaign, and she had so the campaign and the paid of the farty at $12.4 a week, in the eyes of this woman and her manikin, Goldstein, he is a school to and her bickings will never be known. We have written "finis" to that chapter, and no matter what the cry of toleration and mercymay be in benecforth, we shall hit the thief and the traitor as soon as we see them. For a long time Avery and Goldstein found it convenient to yell "constitution, legality," when they were in danger of exposure. They would wave the law they did not respect, and they would appeal to the Party with which they trained, while they abused it. If we allow a crook or a traitor to read their crookedness and treachery into the law, or if we accept the interpretation of a crook or a traitor we break the law.

The new state committee comes into office confronted with a heavy debt. It comes in with the task of cleaning away the unclear work of Martha Moore Avery and L. D. Usher. There is one act of treason for which there can be no forgiveness and no mercy the woman has lived on the movement; she has attempted now that her dishonesty has come to light to go over to the enemy. It does not matter what excuses she may make, she has been branded a traitor to the working class, a leech on the Socialists body. She has been cast aside as one unworthy to continue longer in the company of honest working mean. Usher has also placed himself outside of the pale, and when he left Worcester on January 8 to attend the meeting in Boston, he said as a neparted with his associates, "I will stand by the N. E. C., and I believe that their course has been right, and that they represent the revolutioary Socialists." He returns and herarely tell them that he has not believed in the N. E. C. for six months.
